LOST WHEAT.

The McNear Warehouse Burned.

A Big Fire at Port Costa This Morning.

Several Ships Burned to the Water's Edge.

On Fire and Floating Down the River.

Estimates Place the Loss at Nearly Seven Hundred Thousand Dollars —Supposed Loss of Life by the Fire.

Warehouse No. 2 at Port Costa, belonging to George W. McNear of this city, was totally destroyed by fire this morning with a loss of about $700,000. The fire was discovered in the roof of the second story of warehouse No. 2 at 4:10 A. M., but before any water could be brought to bear the warehouse was in flames. The switch engine in the Port Costa railroad yard was set at work, and assistance was telegraphed for from the Oakland pier. Two special switch engines with pumping apparatus were sent up the road, and Division Superintendent A. D. Wilder and George W. McNear left at 5 o'clock on a special train for Port Costa.

The fire spread along the docks and burned the office of the company and set fire to four vessels—the iron British ship Kenilworth, the wooden American ship Armenia the wooden British ship Honauwar, and the British ship Langdale. The two wooden ships are a total loss, and the cook and steward of the Armenia are missing.

SHIPS AFIRE.

The Losses on Ships and Warehouse Placed at $650,000.

PORT COSTA, August 26.—The southern half of McNear's warehouses at Port Costa was entirely consumed by fire this morning.

The merchant vessels "Armenia," "Kenilworth," and "Honauwar" were also lost, being completely consumed by the fire. The ship "Langdale" escaped by drifting away on the receding tide.

The fire started at 3 o'clock this morning. It was first noticed breaking through the roof of the warehouse. Its origin is unknown.

The vessels burned were entirely beyond the control of the crew, most of whom were ashore.

The losses, as estimated, are: On the warehouses, $350,000; the vessels, $200,000, and the vessels' cargoes, about $100,000.

P. E. Bowles, a gentleman who staid in Port Costa last night, said to a TRIBUNE reporter:

"I don't think the fire was incendiary. There was some talk of that kind, but it is considered an idle rumor. I do not know whether Mr. McNear was there or not. I do not think he was. It is a terrible loss of wheat. Of course I do not know the exact amount, but I think several hundred thousand bushels of grain were consumed by the fire.

A RAILROAD LOSS.

The Southern Pacific Company Loses About $20,000.

A. D. Wilder, Division Superintendent at the pier, went up on a special engine from the Oakland pier with George W. McNear, the owner of the burnt warehouse.

"The fire was discovered at about 4 o'clock," said Mr. Wilder. "It originated in the roof of the second story of warehouse No. 2, which is the warehouse furthest west. They had been at work yesterday with their cleaner, and the fire originated from that. It was discovered at 4 o'clock, though it started much earlier than that. There were four vessels at the dock, one of which was towed off into the stream. The Kenilworth, a British iron ship, was burned, and the two wooden ships, Armenia and Honauwar, were badly burned. We sent a couple of engines up there, and that was all that saved the town.

"I have no idea as to the loss. The warehouse was about one-third full. There may be some salvage, because a portion of the warehouse was built over the bank, and the wheat fell on solid ground when the warehouse gave way. Most of it fell right through into the water.

"There were about forty-five cars on the siding loaded with wheat, ready to begin work this morning. We managed to get about ten of the cars off, and the rest were burned, involving a loss of between $15,000 and $20,000 to the company.

"The fire is now under control."

THE DAMAGE.

The Cook and the Steward of the Armenia Supposed to be Burned.

Special to the Tribune.

PORT COSTA, Aug. 26, 11 A. M.—The fire was discovered at 4:10 A. M. and is now under control, but is still smouldering. Piles of wheat and coal are lying on the bank smouldering and switch engines are still playing on it. The warehouse and offices are very nearly a total loss, though there was some insurance on the building. How much insurance was on the wheat is not known.

The iron British ship Kenilworth is floating in the stream. Her upper works and hold are badly damaged by fire.

The wooden British ship Honauwar is a total loss. She is floating down the bay.

The American wooden ship Armenia is also a total loss. One man is slightly burned and the cook and steward are missing. They are either burned up or are drowned, for not a trace can be found of them.

The wind happened to turn right or the warehouses next to the stores and the whole waterfront and town would have been destroyed.

They can not work at the California warehouse, the crossing having been burnt.

AN AUTHORITATIVE ESTIMATE.

McNear and Company Place the Total Loss Under $400,000.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 26.—P. E. Bowels, General Manager for G. W. McNear, returned from Port Costa this morning. He says that warehouse No. 2 is a complete loss. They can make no estimate of the insurance and will not be able to do so until tomorrow. Clerks are now at work footing it up. The warehouse contained between 7000 and 10,000 tons of wheat. The entire loss caused by the fire will amount to half a million dollars, while the loss of McNear & Co. will amount to between $300,000 and $400,000. The loss of the cargoes of the vessels will fall upon McNear & Co.

CARS AND SHIPS

Burned at Port Costa — A Quick Fire.

PORT COSTA, Aug 26.—The fire started about 4 o'clock this morning. Efforts were made at once to save the freight cars on the dock, but about thirty-five cars, one-fourth of which were loaded with grain, were burned. A stiff wind was blowing off the shore and the flames soon communicated with the shipping. The Armenia, Kenilworth, and Honauwar were on fire in a few minutes. There was only one small engine available. The origin of the fire is not known.

McNEAR'S WAREHOUSES.

A Description of the Property Burned.

McNear's warehouse and wharf property is at Port Costa on the south side of Carquinez straits and embraces an area of over 270,000 square feet. Work was begun in 1881, and although it was virtually completed in a little over a year, Mr. McNear has been adding improvements ever since. The warehouses were originally four in number, three extending east and west along the water front and one being back quite a distance to the south. This last warehouse was subsequently torn down and removed to give additional track room to the railroad company.

The three warehouses, which are Nos. 1, 2 and 4, are 1000 feet in length and about eighty feet wide, with good height, and have a capacity for storing fully 60,000 tons of grain. The water front is covered by a wharf about 3000 feet in length and twenty-six feet wide, and nine full sized ships may be moored there and loaded at once. At one time as many as twelve vessels were loaded at those wharves.

The depth of water averages twenty-five feet, so that the largest ships can be loaded.

There are convenient offices and every facility for the rapid handling of grain.

Warehouses Nos. 1 and 4 are separated from No. 2, in which the fire was this morning, by an open gap, about 100 feet wide, and to this their preservation is largely due, for the wind was blowing from them toward No. 2.

While No. 2 warehouse, which was burned this morning, has a capacity for holding fully 25,000 tons of grain, the quantity in it was much less, owing to the backwardness of the crop season and the small deliveries of grain at tidewater. The latest accounts state that about 300 feet of this warehouse was burned before the fire was well under control.

NEARLY HALF A MILLION.

That Is the Figure the Associated Press puts It At.

By Associated Press.

PORT COSTA, August 26.—The loss is greater than at first supposed and may reach nearly $500,000. A great quantity of wheat stored in the warehouse and on the ships and it is estimated that $250,000 worth of it was destroyed. The loss on the ships, wharves, warehouses and cars will probably reach nearly $250,000 more.

PHILIP E. BOWLES.

What He Says About the Spread of the Fire.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—Messrs. McNear & Co. say that they cannot as yet tell to whom the forty-two carloads of wheat which were burned belong. It was consigned to them from various points in the interior. There were about 600 tons in the cars, worth about $15,000.

Philip E. Bowles, one of the firm of McNear & Co., says that the most of the wheat was their own property although he is not yet accurately informed on that point. Mr. McNear himself is now at Port Costa, and Mr. Bowles returned from there about 11 o'clock this morning.

"We considered," said Mr. Bowles, "that the facilities for putting out fires were perfect. There were water barrels on the roof, a 3-inch pipe all around the docks and hand granades all through the building. Besides these precautions, all the yard engines of the Southern Pacific Company had hose attached. But the people up there who saw the fire say the flames were all over the building like that," and Mr. Bowles snapped his fingers to illustrate.

"The warehouse and docks were completely destroyed, even the piles being burned to the water's edge. Balfour, Guthrie & Co's warehouse came very near going, and indeed a portion of their wharf was burned, but by hard work the warehouse itself was saved. Although our losses are entirely covered by insurance, still the blow has been a hard one for us, not so much in the actual losses themselves, because we are deprived of our tools of trade. It will be some time before we will be able to again get together our paraphernalia and materials which were today destroyed."

THE SHIPS.

The Kenilworth Was Almost Fully Loaded.

PORT COSTA, Aug. 26.—There were 400 tons of grain on the Armenia, 3200 on the Kenilworth and 1000 on the Honauwar. The warehouse contained from 7000 to 10,000 tons of grain. All the grain is fully insured. Not much is known about the insurance on the vessels. The Armenia is owned by Houghton Bros. of Bath, Me. and is valued at $50,000. The Honauwar is owned by the Thompson Bros. of St. John, N. B., and is valued at $45,000. The Kenilworth is an iron ship from England, and is valued at $130,000. The Armenia is not as good a ship as the Honauwar. The Kenilworth would have got away all right had it not been for the Honauwar, which got foul of her with her burning mass, and having locked together, the two were burned. There was no wind blowing at the time of the fire and no origin for it can yet be assigned. The precautions against fire were excellent. There was a three-inch pipe around the docks, water barrels on the top of the buildings, hand grenades all through the buildings, and fire hose on the yard engines.

WILL REBUILD.

Reconstruction of the Warehouse Will Begin at Once.

Special to the Tribune.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 26.—Mr. Bowles says that they will at once begin the work of rebuilding the warehouse, and it will be constructed of corrugated iron. He does not consider the money loss so great as compared with the business that the burning of the wharf will cause. Twenty men went up this afternoon. The California warehouse, owned by Balfour, Guthrie & Co., was slightly damaged and came very near destruction.

The value of the grain destroyed is about $250,000.

A DETAILED STATEMENT

Of the Insurance on the Warehouse, Ships and Wheat.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 26.—The total insurance of McNear & Co. on all their property at Port Costa is as follows: On warehouse, Girard $.750; Citizens, $750; Oregon, Royal, Norwich Union, and London Commercial, Fire Association of Pennsylvania, London, Northern, and Queen, and Continental each $2500; total $17,500. On wharf London, Northern, and Queen, $3570; Svea, $500; total, $12,500. On contents New Zealand, $1500; State Investment, $2000; Security, $2500; North British and Mercantile, $4000; Fireman's Fund, $9750; Union (San Francisco), $5000; Phœnix of Brooklyn, $17,500, American of Pennsylvania, $14,000, Continental, $5000, Anglo-Nevada, $11,000, Ætna, $10,000, Sun, $1000, Williamsburg City, $2000, National, $5000. Total $87,750. Grand total $147,250. This represents the total insurance on wharf, three warehouses and wheat. Only one warehouse was destroyed and nearly all the wharf. The marine insurance loss on the cargoes of the burnt vessels is $152,000. The vessels themselves are fully insured in England.

In spite of all denials, the opinion is spreading that the McNear's losses will exceed the insurance considerably and that they will feel it severely. The total losses are estimated as follows: wheat in warehouses and ships, $350,000; vessels, $250,000; wharves and docks, $50,000; cars, $25,000; wheat in cars, $17,500; total, $700,000.

THE INSURANCE.

The Warehouse Building Is Covered and Perhaps the Wheat.

Special to The Tribune.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 26.—McNear & Co. have just estimated the insurance on the warehouse building to be $15,000, held by Melyard & Dixon's agencies. This will cover the loss. The wharf was insured for $50,000. This will also probably cover the loss. Some of the wheat was owned by interior ranchers consigned to McNear & Co. Mr. Bowles estimates this will be covered by insurance. The wheat in the burned cars was estimated at $15,000.

The Firemen's Fund took most of the policies, but distributed the risks among a number of other companies. Losses will be sustained, beside the Firemen's Fund, by the Union, Brown, Craig & Co.'s agencies, Gorte & Frank's agencies, California, Sun, Williamsburg, Melyard & Dixon's agencies, Hutchinson and Mann, the Commercial and Fire Insurance Company and in fact by nearly all the companies on the street. The cargoes of the burned ships were also fully insured in the Thames & Mersey and the Marine. The British ships were insured in English companies.

"WON'T THE OLD MAN SWEAR."

What Charles Fair Said About His Father.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 26.—Charles Fair, son of Senator Fair, was aboard the train when an excited Pullman car porter rushed up to him and said:

"Mistah Fair, all the Senator's warehouses and wheat is burned, also several ships."

"Is that so?" said the stoical son without the slightest excitement showing on his face. "Golly, won't the old man swear." Mr. Fair was in the receipt of several congratulations when it was learned that the Nevada warehouses had escaped, which he accepted in the same calm fashion.

A Simple Relief for Lung Troubles.

Cocoa (Fla.) Spirit.

During a visit to the home of a most estimable lady living on Indian river this editor was told of a discovery that had been made, which may prove a boon to sufferers from lung or bronchial troubles. This lady, having heard that there was peculiar virtue in a pillow made from pine straw, and having none of that material at hand, made one from soft, pine shavings, and had the pleasure of noting immediate benefit. Soon all the members of the household had pine shaving pillows, and it was noticed that all coughs, asthmatic, or bronchial troubles abated at once after sleeping a few nights on these pillows. An invalid suffering from lung trouble derived much benefit from sleeping upon a mattress made from pine shavings. The material is cheap, and makes a very pleasant and comfortable mattress, the odor of the pine permeating the entire room and absorbing or dispelling all unpleasant or objectionable odors.

FATHER KING

Has Something to Say to Mr. Wendte.

A SYSTEM OF HANDLING QUOTATIONS.

What Cardinal Newman Said—The Dogma of Infallibility—A General Review.

St. Mary's Church was crowded to the doors last night to hear Rev. Michael King's reply to the sermon delivered by Rev. C. W. Wendte a week ago, in which he arraigned the Catholic Church and its methods. Father King, who is the pastor of the church, commenced by saying that it was not his intention to deliver an ornate address. He had not prepared one, and would speak extemporaneously. He purposed merely to take up the charges which Mr. Wendte had made, as he had read them in the daily papers, and reply thereto in plain and simple language.

It was only last night, he said, that he had decided to make any reply at all. He had lived twenty-five years in Oakland and thirty-five years on the coast, and he had always been scrupulous to avoid controversies of this nature. His relations with the ministers of this city had always been cordial, and one of harmony and peace.

Father King continued and said: "There seems to have been through out the East a fever of antagonism and attack upon the Catholic Church, and he sadly regretted it had at last reached Oakland. He thought very strange that their attacks had been made against the church and not on the side of the Government, as he had the utmost confidence in the ability of the Government to amply protect itself."

"There are a certain class of ministers throughout the United States who appear to follow in the footsteps of the Scribes and Pharisees, who, not succeeding in finding any thing in the acts and words of our blessed Lord whereon to make an accusation united with the Herodians to ensnare him, that he might be compromised before the government. So, it would seem, these ministers have declared themselves a self constituted police force to protect the United States against the Pope and Rome. I should surprise that these gentlemen would have sufficient labor in looking after and caring for the spiritual welfare of their flocks, and generously permit the Government to care for itself. It is my intention to discuss this question calmly, and I do not wish to be personal. I wish it to be understood that I do not attribute sinister motives to those who are attacking the church and who, in their belief, consider they have cause for their attacks."

The speaker then quoted from Mr. Wendte: "If we oppose Rome, let it be with the weapons, light, truth, reason, fact, and history, not personalities and denunciation." Father King said he credited Mr. Wendte with not using personalities, but candor and a love of justice constrained him to say that he denied that Mr. Wendte had used in his argument the weapons of truth, reason, or fact. He did not, however, accuse the reverend gentleman with willfully maligning the church. He had been too credulous and had been greatly deceived. Father King again quoted Mr. Wendte, as follows:

"Since the time of Pope Gregory VII the Roman Catholic Church has taught that there can be no sovereign political authority beyond the limits fixed by ecclesiastical power."

"I do not know to whom Mr. Wendte is alluding," continued the speaker, "as he has not named his authority. I think, however, that he explains it in this statement of his own: 'Let us examine this American theory more closely. The State we may define as social man organized for the purpose of civil government. The church is social man organized for worship and religious nurture. Thus in theory each has its own peculiar functions, and is assigned a distinct sphere for their exercise. Each is to respect the others' rights and not to interfere with the other's operations. This is the theoretical, the ideal conception of the relations between church and State, and this is generally conceived to be the American doctrine on this subject.'

"That's just the position of the church toward the State," said Father King. "I thank Mr. Wendte and accept his statement as in accordance with Catholic position. It is not only American, but Catholic."

Again quoting from Mr. Wendte's sermon as to the church's arguing that the state had any right to interfere with her property, Father King said:

"That is not so, and I deny it in toto. The property of the church is subject to the laws of the land. They shall pay taxes in common with the rest, and if Mr. Wendte was not aware of it he could not have lived here very long."

Continuing, the speaker said:

"Mr. Wendte seems to want the matter determined upon the basis of European action. Did he desire it as it was in Germany, where the bishops are imprisoned and exiled, and the property of the church confiscated? It was attempted in Germany to crush the church and the attempt was a failure. Bismarck found it was necessary to recall the bishops and priests in order to counteract the dangerous effects which threatened the government by the Socialistic party. Would he inaugurate here the system which in France had so cruelly driven out the Christian Brothers, some of whom had been decorated with medals for their heroism among the sick and wounded on the battlefield, and even the Sisters of Charity, to whom the French soldiers looked on the battlefield as a sister or a mother."

Referring to the encyclical and syllabus of Pope Pius IX, as to the anthematization of free speech and a free press, as stated by Mr. Wendte, Father King declared that Mr. Wendte's views were taken from the index and were widely misconstrued by the reverend gentleman. The words in question were only taken from the syllabus, which is merely an index and detached from the encyclical and had no meaning.

Father King then read the proposition which had been condemned and to which Wendte referred.

The proposition is as follows: "Liberty of conscience and worship is the inherent right of all men. It ought to be proclaimed in every rightly constituted society. Irish right to all sorts of liberty commendam libertatum; such that it ought not to be restrained by any authority, ecclesiastical or civil, as far as public speaking, printing, or any other public manifestation of opinion is concerned."

"This is a universal proposition," said Father King, "admitting of no exception or limitation, and as such it was condemned, for, according to it, there would be no restraint, ecclesiastical or civil, on the tongue or press. A man might say what he liked, or write what he pleased with impunity. The civil authorities could not take cognizance of his words or writings. A man might fall back on his 'inherent right to speak and talk as he pleased to libel, slander, traduce and defame, which is going to extremes. Immoral and obscene language and pictures might thus be unrestricted. Mr. Wendte would have to expunge from the decalogue one of the commandments. He could not speak against the sins of the tongue, as a man would be free to bear false witness, to slander, and to lie as he willed. It placed Mr. Wendte on two horns of a dilemma—would he go with the Pope or with the condemnation and the socialists? The Pope had condemned the proposition and Mr. Wendte had condemned the Pope, therefore he has taken sides with the socialists, denying the authority of the Government to interfere with the freedom of speech in the sense of the condemned proposition."

Father King again quoted from Dr. Wendte: "It is only a few years since that Bishop Gilmore of Cleveland laid down in a pastoral letter to his diocese the Catholic philosophy of government in the following words: 'Nationalities must be made subordinate to religion. We must learn that we are Catholics first and citizens next. Catholicism teaches that God is above man, the church above the state.'"

"What part of this does he object to?" said Father King. "Does he deny that God is above man; the Creator superior to the creature; the soul to the body? If he had read the first chapter in our little catechism he would have found these facts clearly laid down. Has he forgotten what Christ said: 'What does it profit a man to gain the whole world and lose his own soul,' or 'What can a man give in exchange for his soul?' But I excuse Mr. Wendte.

"This was all an improvised prelude preparing his nerves and the prejudice of his audience for the grand old time, which after all is but a medley which he had in reserve for Father Gleeson's benefit."

Referring to the following quotation from Mr. Wendte: "So Cardinal Newman, in his controversy with Mr. Gladstone, maintained that the British ministers of state ought to apply to Rome to learn the civil duties of British subjects, and that no pledge from Catholics was of any value to which Rome was not a party," Father King said that Mr. Wendte was illogical, as he argued from a particular to a general case, and formed the deduction that no Roman Catholic citizen can rightfully take the oath of allegiance without the consent of Rome. Father King protested against the sentence as being very much garbled, as one part thereof was taken from the top of a page and the rest from the bottom, other subjects having been treated in the middle, and they having no connection."

After stating that the matter Cardinal Newman was treating was a subject brought up in 1826 concerning the infallibility of the Pope, Father King quoted from Cardinal Newman as follows:

"Mr. Gladstone himself says, and the Duke of Wellington and Sir Robert Peel must have known it as well as he, 'The Popes have kept up with comparatively little intermission for well nigh a thousand years, their claim to dogmatic infallibility. The fact of the Pope's claim to infallibility was so patent a fact, could have ever supposed that he could be brought to admit that it was hopeless to dream that existing a dogma?' Although those ministers were very little interested in the question as was said in a petition or declaration signed among others by Dr. Troy (Bishop of Dromore), it was commercial in a political light; but even if they thought it immaterial or if there were other questions they wanted to ask, why go to Bishop Doyle? They would go to obtain some real information about the probabilities of the future—why did they not go to headquarters? Why did they palter about the bulls of universities in the matter of Papal excommunications or rely upon the homilies or examinations of Bishops whom they never heard for their credentials. Why not go at once to Rome?"

Then Father King quoted another passage from Cardinal Newman, which was followed by the words: "Rome could never be a party to sue a pledge as England wanted, and no pledge from Catholics was of any value to which Rome was not a party."

"According to this mode of quotation," said the speaker, "we could prove from the scriptures that suicide is perfectly sinless. It is said in one part of the scriptures that 'Judas bought a rope and hanged himself' and in another it says 'Go thou and do likewise.' Now, if we make one sentence out of these two quotations, following Mr. Wendte's system, we have: 'Judas bought a rope and hanged himself. Go thou and do likewise.'

"If Mr. Wendte had sought information from me or from some Catholic source he would not have fallen into such a mess. Now, according to his illogical deductions, he won't have had to consult me as to what he would have for his meals for the balance of his life, or the subject matter for his sermons. While I have the utmost respect for my reverend friend I have felt it my duty to speak as I have done. I do not entertain hard feelings against him nor against the ministers, but only sentiments of sympathy and charity."

PROFESSOR HESSE

Fully Endorses the Artesian Well Project.

Professor Hilgard Not Connected With the Matter—Professor Ross Browne's Report.

EDITOR TRIBUNE:—There appeared in your paper an article concerning Mr. Ross Browne's proposition to supply Oakland with artesian water. This is misleading with respect to the connection of Professor Hilgard and myself with the matter.

Prof. Hilgard had no connection whatsoever with the proposition. I was induced by the facts upon which the scheme is based, being submitted to me by Mr. Browne, to give the subject a careful study.

At my suggestion the scheme was limited to the supply for household purposes only, leaving the present supply available for all other purposes.

Becoming convinced that the artesian supply for household use is the most economical and available that the city of Oakland can obtain, I fully endorsed Mr. Browne's scheme. F. G. HESSE.

The Sale of Many-towered Camelot.

London Telegraph.

The auctioneer's hammer in Tokenhouse Yard, City, was yesterday called into requisition to decide the fate of "many towered Camelot" of Arthur, or rather its site. It was simply thrown in as an "extra" with the bulk of the Cadbury estate. The hill of Camelot is, in plain truth, located among the wilds of rural Somersetshire, and graces an estate of some 2400 acres. What, in sober fact, remains of the fabled citadel? Only a steep, oblong hill, begirt with lines of earthworks which represent the defenses of an old British camp, and yield an occasional skeleton, a stray title, or piece of derelict pottery to the curious antiquarian. It is on the crest of this declivity, the Castle Hill of Cadbury, that we find the moated mound on which the palace is said to have stood. But the reserve price of £122,600 was not touched. Camelot did not fetch a bid! the Round Table did not attract even an upholsterer's offer! and Cadbury seeks still a new owner.

Daniel Slattery Has a Narrow Escape From Death.

Daniel Slattery and a young man named Daniel Morrisey went into a saloon in East Oakland last night, and after having several drinks they got into a quarrel with the bar keeper named Rogers. The trio repaired to the sidewalk, and Rogers and a man named Orr commenced to assault Morrisey. Slattery interfered and made a pass at Rogers, but missed his mark. Slattery says that Rogers then pulled a pistol and threatened to kill him, and he ran away followed by Rogers. During the chase Slattery fell down, but managed to escape. He boarded the 9 o'clock train and stood on the platform, when he was informed that Rogers was on the train looking for him. He thought Rogers was going to shoot him, and when he saw him open the door he attempted to jump off the moving train, when some one pushed him and he fell headlong to the ground, sustaining a fracture of the right leg. The fracture was reduced at the receiving Hospital. Slattery says he does not know who pushed him off the train.

TO HAYWARDS.

An Electric Road From Oakland to That Town.

An Enterprise Which Is Being Quietly Worked Up—The Men Who are Interested.

It is currently reported about town that an electric railroad between Oakland and Haywards is likely to be a reality before long, and that those who are interested in the matter have completed all arrangements necessary to securing a franchise from the county, which will be done very soon. Thomas Prather, President of the Union National Bank, is interested in this matter, and for several weeks past has been in communication with prominent bankers in other large cities where similar roads are in operation presumably for the purpose of ascertaining the value of such roads, with a view to buying the bonds of the new road.

C. E. Palmer of the same bank is also interested in the new road, and when called upon by a TRIBUNE reporter manifested some surprise that the matter had leaked out, saying that it had been the intention to keep the scheme quiet until application was made for a franchise. The Board of Trade has been unofficially notified of the proposition, and the prime mover in the enterprise is said to be Socrates Hull.

County Treasurer S. Hull in speaking of the proposed road, said: "There has been considerable talk about an electric road between Oakland and Haywards, but as yet nothing has been definitely decided upon. We have been talking about this matter for sometime until now it appears that the scheme is about to be realized although it is not certain. A number of eastern capitalists have intimated to me that they would invest a large sum of money in the building of the proposed railroad. As far as I am concerned individually, I have not as yet made up my mind whether I will put my capital into the new road. The Eastern capitalists now have a representative in Oakland, whose name I do not care to disclose at present. He is the man that came to me and suggested the building of the new road. There is a likelihood of an organization being perfected in a few days. I am very sorry this matter has got into the papers, as we were desirous of keeping it quiet for a short time."

Didn't Catch His Meaning.

Buffalo Courier.

A man was sitting on the third seat in an Allen street car yesterday, when a short, fat man climbed aboard, and at once began fanning himself with his hat. "Well, this is a hot day, ain't it?" said he, addressing his neighbor.

"Beg pardon?" said the first man.

"I say it's a pretty hot day!" repeated the short, fat man, raising his voice.

The other put his hand to his ear and answered: "I didn't quite catch that; please repeat it."

The little man's ears grew red as he shouted: "It's a hot day, I tell you!" and people in the back seats began to titter.

"I'm a little deaf," responded the first man. "If you will raise your voice."

"Confound it, sir!" howled the little man, perspiring like a sponge, "I say its hot! hot, I tell you! Hot day! D'you hear that?"

The other shook his head, and the little man, casting a look of wrath on him, alighted. Then the first man looked around on the passengers and chuckled gleefully.

A Foundling.

On Saturday evening last the matron of the Children's Home at Temescal was roused by a loud ringing of the doorbell. On opening the door she observed a bundle, and after taking it inside and unwrapping it she discovered a newly born babe. A note was pinned to its clothes, stating that the child was of English parentage, that it should be raised gently, and be called Frank Harris.

JOHN P. IRISH

Replies to Mrs. F. M. Smith's Letter.

A STATEMENT OF HIS POSITION.

A Review of Mrs. Smith's Allegations in the Light of the Facts of Record at the Home.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TRIBUNE. It is to be regretted that whenever a Trustee, appointed by the late A. Chabot to administer the largest charitable fund in the city, makes a business suggestion it is treated as offensive to a voluntary association which, while it is spending the Chabot money, was not mentioned in his deed of trust nor contemplated in his scheme for a Woman's Sheltering Home.

In a communication published in your columns of Friday last, I find the Trustees to this express trust treated as an incumbrance in the way of the voluntary association, or at best as subordinate thereto and guilty of certain insubordinate acts.

Perhaps I have been entirely mistaken in supposing that Mr. Chabot's trustees find the grant and limitation of their authority in his deed of trust. My assertion to that effect has raised a din and clamor, and should be a warning to other charitably inclined gentlemen to supplement similar trust deeds by a declaration that they mean what they say.

I have recently tried to find out something from the books of the voluntary association that would give some idea of its work, and perhaps yield some information for the guidance of the trustees. It is suggestive that my statements, taken from the books were at once denounced as misrepresentations, "essential or intentional." If the books so misrepresent the condition of affairs that those who condemn they record find it necessary to declare the record unworthy of credit I will gladly do anything to aid them in making a record by which they can stand.

In the communication, which you published in submitting a statement which I trust will not share the fate of the other's record and be disavowed as soon as it is analyzed.

By this official declaration I find that the inmates of the home for July amounted to one person for fifty-five days served with three meals a day. This is more than the monthly average, but accepting it as the average, it represents an expenditure for maintenance of the inmates of $36 per year. Now what does it cost to spend that handsome money in charity under the present plan? The following will show:

SECRETARY'S EXPENSES.
Secretary	$ 300
Treasurer's bond	75
Incidentals	25
Total	$ 400
EXPENSE VOLUNTARY ASSOCIATION.
Clerk	$ 480
Matron	336
Rent	360
Total	$1296

Grand total, $1696. Paid out to disburse $1.65 in charity! I trust this will not be attacked as a misrepresentation, inasmuch as it is taken directly from the official explanation of the records.

The late Mr. Chabot was a practical business man. He desired to give $100,000, say, in charity. It will be seen by the above statement that it requires $1 to carry $1 to the people he intended to benefit. Yet your correspondent submits ante mortem conversations to prove that this is the way in which Mr. Chabot wished his charity administered. If this be true, he should have left $100,000 to pay the expenses of bestowing the $100,000 upon its beneficiaries.

Very truly,

JOHN P. IRISH.

Oakland, August 24, 1889.

A CHILD AGAIN.

A Middle Aged Man Plays the Pranks of an Infant.

John Kennedy, a middle aged man, enjoyed himself last night as he has not enjoyed himself before for many years. He drank himself drunk, and then started southward along San Pablo avenue. While outside the city limits he threw rocks at a cable car, broke a window, and struck Harry Dolser, a brakeman, on the head. He continued his tour, and when he crossed Thirty-sixth street he was inside the city and subject to municipal control. He broke the glass in two gas lamps and approached a third, situated near the corner of Thirtieth street, in front of the residence of Ex Councilman J. H. Smith. He broke the glass in this gas lamp and was seen by Officer Downey, who arrested him after a chase. In the Police Court this morning he pleaded not guilty to a charge of malicious mischief and the case was tried immediately. As soon as Kennedy heard the testimony of the police officer he withdrew his plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty. He will be sentenced tomorrow. Complaints probably will be filed in the Township Justice's Court for the offenses committed outside the city limits.

NO OBSTACLES.

The Last Day for Protest Against a Proposed Improvement.

This is the last day allowed by law for presentation of a protest against the proposed improvement of Eighth street between Franklin and Washington streets by paving the roadway thereof with bituminous rock. No protest has yet been presented and none is expected. Hence the work will be ordered as soon as the bids are received after proper advertisement and request for proposals are made.

AN INDIAN FUNERAL.

A Ceremony of the Calaveras Foothills.

Calaveras Prospect.

There was a funeral ceremony yesterday at the Indian rancheria. The dusky "Sally" who had been suffering so long, finally succumbed to the inevitable and her spirit "wended its way" to the Happy Hunting Ground. A spectator to the burial services thus describes the burial: First a grave about four feet was dug after the Christian fashion. A rude coffin was constructed by a young buck, trimmed inside and out with black calico, through which were driven about two dozen coffin tacks as decorations. The coffin containing the remains was lowered into the grave. Then each relative of the deceased descended into the sepulchre and threw themselves at full length upon the coffin, each in their turn. The mother of the dead sat near the head of the grave solemnly burning old rags, and crushing the ashes between her hands, indulging in a chant of grief. The husband, attired in a peculiar cloak and hood, the latter which came well down over his eyes, stood muttering to himself under the shade of a tree near by. The grave was filled with earth, and then each relative again threw themselves upon the mound of earth and bewailed. The mother then went through a pantomime with a stick apparently measuring each individual as they mourned. Then with a "whish" she motioned the stick from her. Then "Yellow Jacket," a blind man of the tribe, began a tribal eulogy. He poured forth his eloquence for more than an hour in a spirit of earnestness. It would have made interesting reading, no doubt, to have had a translator there. From the attention given the speaker by his listeners he was not throwing words away. He was no doubt performing the last verbal ceremony from the living to the dead.

The Long-Headed Man and the Good Thing.

Puck.

There was once a Long-Headed Man who invented a Household Utensil of such general Utility that instead of giving it a Name setting forth an Intelligible idea of its character, he called it simply a Good Thing.

So Proud was he of his Good Thing that he would not make its Existence known in the Press. "If People will not come in and ask for the Good Thing," he would say, "I don't propose to go the Trouble of telling them about It. If People don't know It when they see it they must suffer the Consequences of their Blindness."

When a mortgage was foreclosed on him a little Later, the Successful Bidder Advertised the Good Thing in several Papers, and he had difficulty in employing a sufficient number of Men to fill the Red Wagons that backed up at his Door.

The Moral of this Fable is in the possession of our Advertising Agent, who will Disclose it in all its Variegated Beauty to all Inquirers on receipt of Stamp for Return Postage.

The Way of the Circus Fikir.

Chicago Mail.

Every town is squared before a circus goes into it. A man goes ahead all the time doing this. I once squared Burlington, Ia., for $200, which was dead cheap, for we were there two days and took away lots of money. But, you see, the officials were cheap. I bought the Mayor, the City Attorney, the Sheriff, and the Chief of Police for $50 apiece. These officials must be "squared" in every town, and sometimes some others. Then, you see, if one of the short change workers get it to such trouble as the circus people can't help him out of, and he is arrested, he is either discharged or given a light fine, or released on straw bail. Oh, there's nothing like organization when you start in to do business.

Possibly.

A GATHERING OF THE "ELITE."

Balls, Parties, Engagements and Entertainments—Movements and Whereabouts.

Engagement.

The marriage of Miss Emily Lindsley, daughter of Rev. Dr. Lindsley of this city, to James T. Ross, is announced to take place in Portland, the bride's former home, on Tuesday, September 17th.

Coming Events.

Tuesday night, August 27th, the First Baptist Church will give an entertainment and social. Miss Bertha Pearce, a promising elocutionist, and graduate of the Chicago Oratory, has been engaged to participate in the evening's programme.

The Young Men's Institute will give a grand ball at Germania Hall next Wednesday night.

Simmons will give a sheet and pillow case party at his hall September 6th.

A Saturday Night Dance.

The "O & G" Social Club gave a very pleasant apron and necktie party last Saturday night. There was a large attendance and the dancers enjoyed themselves quite as much as at the usual parties which are given twice a month. The club intends to give a grand ball in the near future.

The Elite Card Party.

Saturday night the long expected dance or card party of the Elite Social Club took place at Cavalry Hall. There were over eighty-five couples present and, as usual, a good time was enjoyed. In the grand march "playing cards" were distributed, and being of different colors, the fun produced in hunting partners will be quite evident. If a young man had a card displaying the ace of spades it would not be the thing to dance with the queen of hearts. Dancing was continued until a late hour. Refreshments were served, and when the time came for departure, many were reluctant to go.

Among those present were: George Cummings, Harry Campbell, Miss Carrie Bloom, Louis Selna, W. W. Curnoe, Ed Wiedler, Charles E. Schafer, Miss Ella Nolan, Miss Hettie Bracken, H. L. Blake, Miss Pauline Hall, Mrs. N. D. Wiggin, Miss Jennie Frantzin, Charles M. Wiggin, Miss Fitzbogen, Miss Stephens, C. A. Balantyne, Mrs. T. Stephens, A. E. Smith, N. H. Lussier, Miss A. Why They Are Favorites.

The soldiers of company A of the dandy Fifth while encamped at Santa Cruz met with the greatest favor in the eyes of the fair Santa Cruz maids, and before long company A was the most popular in the regiment. It is accounted for by the fact that those Oaklanders buy their clothes from O'Connor, the artist tailor, at 1010 Broadway. An inspection of his new fall styles is requested. Prices reasonable and a perfect fit guaranteed.

A Suggestion for Mr. De Young.

The Chronicle publishes an exhaustive history of irrigation on the coast, accompanied by a general review of the systems of distributing water in other countries. It is a huge piece of enterprise covering more broad sheets than we have had time to count much less read. Indeed, we fear that such work is largely wasted. Not more than one reader in a thousand will do more than glance at the handsome pictures—largely prophetic—with which the issue is adorned. Then the 40,950—taking the Chronicle's own figures of circulation—will proceed to throw the paper under the seat and the other fifty will tackle the wad with what appetite they may.

Speaking seriously, however, and acknowledging freely the excellent intention of the issue, we nevertheless believe that it proceeds from a mistaken idea of the scope and functions of journalism. So far as work of this sort is original it is lost in the great mass of compilation done by reporters working against space, and in all probability wholly ignorant of their subject, except in so far as they may pick up a little from the authorities they are rehashing. The specialist does not want such work, because he will go to the original authorities, and to the general reader they are likely to be misleading, because the reporter nibbling at a big subject cannot have any sense of proportion of the relative value of the stuff he is trying to bolt.

Another reason why we regard such publications as injudicious is their inconvenient shape for preservation. If they are not valuable as a work of reference they are of no value at all. If the matter is what it purports to be, a true account and a complete conspectus of the systems of irrigation, it should be worth preservation. If it is merely a gathering of sloppy rehash it would better have remained unprinted. But the flimsy and fluttering sheets of a newspaper are practically useless for reference purposes, and if matter is worth preserving it should be put in book or pamphlet form. Our point is this: The Chronicle at the beginning of every year publishes a very complete showing of the industrial progress and condition of the State for the year then ended. Now, if these publications would take any shape but that, they would be valuable and useful, and could be preserved. The New York and Chicago papers do this in the useful little almanacs they issue. These cover a somewhat different ground, but their form is entirely applicable and appropriate to the Chronicle's New Year's issues. Such a work of reference is needed on this coast.

THERE appears to be some misconception in the minds of our contemporaries regarding the scheme for supplying artesian water for domestic uses in Oakland, which THE TRIBUNE had the honor to call to their attention for the first time. For their information, we may state that the Board of Works of this city has nothing to do with the plan as a board or public body, although it is the fact that one or more of the Commissioners are interested in the project as private individuals. Having divested our contemporaries for the moment of their condition of mental confusion—their normal state—it will now be in order for them to declare that they knew it all along.

THE most extraordinary blast in the way of a newspaper crow over its "reptile contemporaries" which we have recently experienced is contained herein:

A significant incident illustrating the thoroughness of the Examiner's newsgathering ability was apparent in the issue of the several morning papers yesterday. Friday was notable for the number of murderers who expiated their crime on the scaffold, and in telling the story one contemporary headed its article: "Four Men Hanged." Another had: "Five Men Hanged;" but the Examiner, The Monarch of the Dailies, had "Six Men Hanged."

Others may print some of the news; we print all of it.

Clearly the newspaper which was able to go the others one better, and had succeeded in tallying seven hangings in one day, should scoop the pot. What an interesting competition!

BERKELEY is doing very nicely. An increase of taxable values of $267,782 for the past year is not to be sneezed at. The present total valuation of the town is $3,500,653, showing an increase of nearly 8 per cent for the year.

WE are glad to see Ambrose Bierce back at his work. That work is not appreciated at its full value now. It is for the next age and when we are all dead and comfortably rotten, they will be gathering up his fragments and wondering what manner of men were those who, for the most part, failed to understand what they were getting. It is true that his work is that of the satirist—not the highest grade of literature—and ten years from to-day it will have no extrinsic value whatever, because of the insignificance of the men at whom it is so largely directed. Its intrinsic value will remain, and this has never been excelled, perhaps we might say approached, by Pope or Juvenal or Junius, or the other great masters of satire and invective. That he is capable of a higher class of work is plain from his occasional short stories and the single really great lyric with which he has enriched the language. He is intellectually lazy, and does not adequately feel the debt which he owes to posterity and the judicious of this age. If the question were put to him he would consider it a sufficient answer to inquire, When or how he had incurred that debt?

WE hope and feel confident that the charitable people of Oakland will not forget the donation party of the Fabiola Hospital. This admirable institution has no endowment from which to draw for its support, but all the same it has a record of effective work. If you have money or groceries or useful supplies which you can spare they will be put to good use by this charitable institution.

Thinks We Want the Earth.

Santa Cruz Sentinel.

Chicago has annexed all the adjacent county, and expects that next year the census will show it to be the second largest city in the Union. Oakland proposes to annex Berkeley and neighboring towns, and the Sentinel suggests that Santa Cruz annex East Santa Cruz, Soquel, Capitola and Powder Mill Flat. We believe in keeping up with the procession, even if the horses run away with the corpse.

A Caution to the Principal.

Mt. Eden Correspondence Haywards Journal.

The unusual interest many of our young ladies take in the school since the new principal took hold is a caution.

Lullaby.

Hush, little one!
Lie still in my arms,
Mother is near you:
Nobody harms.
See, the wee baby moon
Lies on the sky,
Just as you, little one,
On my heart lie.

List to the baby birds:
Hear their wee cry,
Close to their mother dear,
Hovering near by
The old drowsy trees:
See your wee dreamy eyes,
They smile at you, dearest,
And sing lullabys.

They whisper of sleepy land
Not far away
Where play mothers' babies
And long there to stay.
Hush, little one!
And then you may go
To the land of the drowsy bird
Where the dreamy winds blow.

THE NILES SALE.

Loring Pickering Buys Five Acres For $1900.

F. W. Woodward & Co.'s auction sale at Niles Saturday was well attended. A large crowd assembled from all parts of the State. Special trains ran to and from the property. A fine lunch was served and everyone was happy. Messrs. H. H. Matlock & Son officiating as auctioneers. The bidding was spirited and the property brought fair prices. The sale opened promptly at 10 o'clock. The first plot, No. 1, containing five acres, was sold to Loring Pickering of the San Francisco Bulletin at $380 per acre.

The second plot, No. 2, brought $380 per acre, sold to Mr. Pickering. Plot No. 3, containing five acres, sold to Mr. Carr of Southern California at $360 per acre.

Plots Nos. 4, 7 and 8, each containing five acres and partially covered with vines, were sold to Albert Woodbridge at $350 per acre.

Plot No. 9, containing five acres and covered with almonds, sold to Robert Searles at $375 per acre.

Plot No. 10, containing five acres, entirely covered with fruit, sold to Eli S. Dennison of Oakland for $400 per acre.

Plot No. 11, sold to the same buyer at $400 per acre.

Plots 5 and 6 sold to Henry Smith for $360 per acre.

The five plots remaining unsold will be on sale for a limited time at the office of E. W. Woodward & Co., at $360 per acre. They are now nearly all negotiated for.

A. Laidlaw's Jurisdiction.

E. C. Chapman represented four defendants in the Police Court this morning, and in two of the cases he made formal motions to dismiss on the ground that the court has no jurisdiction over the persons of the defendants or the crimes charged in the complaints. Judge Laidlaw denied the motions.

All the cases in which Chinese lottery agents are defendants will be postponed until after the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Ah You, on habeas corpus, in which proceeding the jurisdiction of Judge Alexander Laidlaw is questioned.

A Business Change.

Messrs. Thomas McGinnis and J. S. Buckley last week purchased the oldest established undertaking business in Oakland, corner of Broadway and Eighth streets, recently conducted by Armstrong & Hopkins, and will incorporate the same. Frank Armstrong of the late firm will remain as funeral director and attend to the practical part of the business, while Messrs. McGinnis and Buckley, both thorough business men, will give their entire attention to the management of the business.

After the Picnic.

A picnic was held at Badger's Park yesterday, and the train that left Brooklyn station at 7 o'clock was boarded by a throng from the Park at Clinton station. The rear smoking car was crowded and Gus Lindrot, a young Scandinavian, was drunk, noisy and vulgar. His companions tried to quiet him, but he would not be quieted, and officer Hunter placed him under arrest. He confessed his guilt to Judge Laidlaw this morning.

PRISON LABOR.

Unfair Competition With Local Mills.

INTERVIEW WITH MR. RUTHERFORD.

The State Making Goods at a Loss in Order to Injure Free Labor—Capital Driven Away.

"We are driven to the wall by unfair competition," said James Rutherford, acting Superintendent of the California Cotton Mills, in answer to a question put by a TRIBUNE reporter.

A few facts gleaned by the reporter show that convict manufacture is an evil of the first magnitude. It not only cripples the industries of a similar kind already in existence, but it prevents the employment of capital in like business all over this coast.

There is room for jute manufacture to an extent twenty times the capacity of the present factories on the Pacific coast, and times out of number capitalists from all parts of the world have come here with a view to investment. But just about the time they were ready to do something substantial the State Penitentiary would loom up before their vision with a competing list that is based on the public expense.

The recent order issued by the Board of Penitentiary Directors for the manufacture and marketing of jute goods is in direct violation of the public sentiment of the State. The abolishment of the door sash and blinds manufacture was hailed with delight last winter. But the manufacture of these articles did not interfere with the public economy in the same way that does the manufacture of jute goods. Every village has its planing mill and its door and window factory, but the manufacture of jute goods requires an investment of capital that is hazardous, if the venture should prove a failure.

"How much of the market demand do you supply with your jute produce?" asked the reporter.

"Not over five per cent," said Mr. Rutherford. "The supply is made by foreign manufacturers, and they will not enter the market against convict labor. I know several capitalists who have been here and would build up factories for the manufacture of jute bags, twine, and other goods of a like character, but the minute they sight the penitentiary competition they draw out. They will not enter into competition with that sort of labor."

"What effect does the penitentiary manufacture have upon your business?"

"It has the effect of closing our own work of a like character. Our looms and spindles stand idle to-day in consequence. And yet we can make jute bags and twine at a much less cost than can the State. That's queer, isn't it?"

"Rather. How do you account for that?"

"Well, I'll tell you," said Mr. Rutherford. "We have the latest improved machinery. Our operators are all skilled workmen; they have been taught the work right here, and they take pride in their work. There is absolutely no waste or loss of time. But how is it at the prison? Half the stock goes through a wastage; out of ten hours of labor only four hours of actual work is produced. These are facts that cannot be gainsaid. Many convicts will cause a machine to break in order to get a chance to lay off from work."

"You do not propose to compete with the penitentiary products, then?"

"Certainly not. We cannot throw our capital away. Who will reimburse us, if we run short at the end of the year? With the penitentiary it is all right. They ask for an appropriation to cover deficiencies, and they get it. The honest laborer is thrown out of employment in order to give scope to the thief and the murderer. I consider prison competition simply to be an auxiliary to crime. It throws men and women out of work. They are bereft of a means of making an honest livelihood, and when they come face to face with starvation they will steal. Result: More recruits for the penitentiary."

"You said, Mr. Rutherford, that capitalists are deterred from investing here on account of this competition. Who are these capitalists?"

"One of them is my brother-in-law. He intended to invest half a million of Scottish capital here in the manufacture of jute and ramee, but the moment he got a vision of possible penitentiary competition he gave up the idea. He is now employing this capital in Dundee, Scotland."

"Are you familiar with the workings of the various State penitentiaries in this country?"

"Yes, somewhat. I know that most of the States have abolished free market competition. And they find it beneficial to the public economy, too."

J. Y. Miller, Secretary of the California Cotton Mills, said:

"We cannot compete with prison labor, and therefore our goods of a like character will have to go to the wall. We have the most skilled operatives on the coast and there is no waste worth speaking of in our work. They make good wages, but they are free Americans, and neither can nor will compete with convict labor. It is too bad as many of them will be thrown out of employment."

The California Jute Mills was next visited by the reporter. The Superintendent, John Robinson, looked gloomy, and said he felt apprehensive for the future of the works.

"What effect has the recent order of the Penitentiary directors had upon your work?" asked the reporter.

"It has had the effect of shutting down our best machines. We cannot compete with prison labor, and therefore we have to stop all manufacture of the same kind."

"Is there room and market for additional work in the jute line?"

"Most assuredly. Seventy per cent. of the jute goods used on this coast is imported. It could all be made right here, but capital does not want to compete with prison labor and a State treasury."

"You think, then, that the penitentiary work prevents capital from being invested here?"

"Of course it does. I know a number of capitalists who would go into jute manufacture here if the danger of penitentiary competition did not threaten them."

"Has the recent order had any material effect on your work?"

"It has. I had to stop several of our machines because I knew that we could not run them and make a living for our operatives."

The Innocent Cigar.

A demure Chinaman visited the City Prison on Saturday evening and wanted to give an innocent looking cigar of haystack wrapper to a fellow countryman in jail. The cigar was examined by the prison keeper, who discovered that instead of containing tobacco the wrapper was filled with prepared opium. The filler of the cigar had been skillfully removed and the cavity filled with opium. A little cap of tobacco was placed in the large end. The visitor was immediately arrested on a charge of attempting to smuggle opium into the prison.

A Sore Throat or Cough, if suffered to progress, often results in an incurable throat or lung trouble. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" give instant relief.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

The usual treatment of catarrh is very unsatisfactory, as thousands of despairing patients can testify. On this point a trustworthy medical writer says: "Proper local treatment is positively necessary to success, but many, if not most, of the remedies in general use by physicians afford but temporary benefit. A cure cannot certainly be expected from snuffs, powders, douches and washes." Ely's Cream Balm is a remedy which combines the important requisites of quick action, specific curative power with perfect safety and pleasantness to the patient.

Few children can be induced to take physic without a struggle, and no wonder—most drugs are extremely nauseating. Ayer's Pills, on the contrary, being sugar-coated, are eagerly swallowed by the little ones, and are, therefore the favorite family medicine.

A TORPID liver and bad digestion bring on dyspepsia, constipation, sick headache and biliousness. Hobb's Little Vegetable Pills act directly on the liver, and will cure all the above complaints. Only one pill a dose.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

IS the "ideal" Hair-dressing. It restores the color to gray hair; promotes a fresh and vigorous growth; prevents the formation of dandruff; makes the hair soft and silken and imparts a delicate but lasting perfume.

"Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. I tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best in the world."—T. Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for a number of years, and it has always given me satisfaction. It is an excellent dressing, prevents the hair from turning gray, insures its vigorous growth, and keeps the scalp white and clean."—Mary A. Jackson, Salem, Mass.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for promoting the growth of the hair, and think it unequaled. For restoring the hair to its original color, and for addressing, it cannot be surpassed."—Mrs. Geo. La Fever, Eaton Rapids, Mich.

"Ayer's Hair Vigor is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair and makes it glossy and soft. The Vigor is also a cure for dandruff."—J. W. Bowen, Editor "Enquirer," McArthur, Ohio.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past two years, and found it all it is represented to be. It restores the natural color to gray hair, causes the hair to grow freely, and keeps it soft and pliant."—Mrs. M. V. Day, Cohoes, N. Y.

"My father, at about the age of fifty, lost all the hair from the top of his head. After one month's trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor the hair began coming, and, in three months, he had a fine growth of hair of the natural color."—P. J. Cullen, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

DRUNKENNESS

(Or the Liquor Habit), Positively Cured by administering Dr. Haines' Golden Specific.

It can be given in a cup of coffee or tea without the knowledge of the person taking it; is absolutely harmless, and will effect a permanent and speedy cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. Thousands of drunkards have been made temperate men who have taken Golden Specific in their coffee without their knowledge, and to-day believe they quit drinking of their own free will. IT NEVER FAILS. The system once impregnated with the Specific it becomes an utter impossibility for the liquor appetite to exist. 48 Page Book of particulars free. P. J. HONEST CLOTHING!

HONEST CLOTHING!

It is our mission to enlighten the public as to what is and what is not Honest Clothing. By the term honest, we don't mean clothing that won't lie, or steal, or stuff a ballot-box; but clothing that is what we claim for it, a really serviceable article, which will do us credit in the selling and the customer service in the wear.

Some of our competitors don't seem to like our sharp analysis of some of the trash offered for sale, nor our allusions to the various and questionable methods of business in vogue.

They seem to regard with fear and trembling the general education of the public on this subject as some frail craft, tempest tossed, fears the gathering breakers that rush and toss about it. But, as for us, we stand like the Defiant Lighthouse, and, while the sea of competition washes around our base, we still continue to pour a flood of light on matters pertaining to our business.

A notable example of Honest Clothing is found in those Pants we now offer at $5. True, you can buy pants all around at $3, but they are not what we are showing. We've got 'em at $2 50, if you want a low priced article, and can furnish that sort of article as well as anybody and give you better value every time.

Same is true of the Suits we offer at $10 and $12. Suits are daily advertised a few cents lower than $10, an endeavor, we suppose, to break the force of the immediate success of our popular sale. But don't immagine that the goods are at all alike. There's a bigger difference in quality than there is in price, and it's in our favor.

Those Scarfs at 25c are another illustration of the marvelous bargains we are at times able to offer you. Have you seen them? If you have "nuf ced." If not, we only ask you to look at them; you'll buy fast enough.

THE CULP ROAD TROUBLE.

District Attorney Reed introduced the following resolution in the matter of the application of Daniel Culp for a private road in the Mount Eden Road district, filed May 6th:

WHEREAS, It appearing to the Board of Supervisors of the county of Alameda that proper and legal notice of the hearing upon the viewer's report in the matter of the petition of Daniel Culp for a private road in Mount Eden Road district, filed May 6, 1889, heretofore fixed by this board for the 24th day of June, 1889, has not been given to the owners of land not consenting to give the right of way for said road. Now, therefore be it Resolved and ordered by the Board of Supervisors of the county of Alameda that the order adopted and made by this board on the 3d day of June, 1889, fixing the 24th day of June, 1889, for hearing the report of the viewers in said matter, and all orders and proceedings in said matter subsequent to said order of the 3d day of June, 1889, be and the same are hereby vacated and set aside.

And be it further resolved and ordered that Monday, the 30th day of September, 1889, at the Courthouse in the city of Oakland, be and the same are hereby fixed as the day and place for hearing the report of the viewers, and the Clerk of this board is hereby directed to cause the owners of land not consenting to give the right of way for said road to be notified of the hearing of said report in accordance with section 2688 of the Political Code.

The resolution was adopted, and the District Attorney stated that he intended to have the notices served by the Sheriff this time so as to avoid any possibility of serious mistake in the future, as he expected the matter would be taken to the courts anyway.

The District Attorney also presented the bond and contract of C. B. Granger for the replanking of the Alvarado bridge. The bond is in the sum of $1000, with J. C. Whipple and John Quigley as sureties. The bond was approved by the board.

TO INCREASE THE ASSESSMENT.

The following letter from the State Board of Equalization was read:

Charles T. Boardman, Esq.—Please take notice and inform the Board of Supervisors of the county of Alameda that the State Board of Equalization, having examined the assessment book or roll for the year 1889 for said county, proposes to increase the assessment roll or book of said county for said year, except such property as is exempt from increase, for the purpose of making the assessments conform to the true value in money of the property contained on said roll so as to equalize the value of taxable property of the several counties in the State of California for the purpose of taxation.

The board will consider all objections which may be made to such increase at its office in the Capitol at Sacramento, on Tuesday, the 3d day of September, 1889, between the hours of 9 A. M. and 5 P. M.

Respectfully,
E. W. MASLIN, Clerk.

Chairman Morgan thought that it would be a good idea to attend the meeting and oppose an increase of the assessment roll, as he thought the county was taxed as high as was necessary at present. This opinion prevailed and the board decided to go to Sacramento. The following resolution was then adopted.

Resolved, That the allowance of claim No. 3284 to James McCoy on the General Road fund of 1889-90 for carpenter work be and it is hereby canceled.

Clerk Boardman explained that Mr. McCoy was road overseer of that district and as such it was impossible for him to draw two salaries.

The bond of Charles E. Lloyd and C. A. Warner in the sum of $2000 each for the faithful performance of the work of changing the grade of Broadway between the city line of the city of Oakland and Temescal, which had been rejected at the last meeting owing to an error, was again presented, but was referred back to Mr. Knowles, as the bondsmen were not known by the board, with a request to secure suitable bondsmen.

A letter from George H. Payne, President of the Alameda Improvement Association, thanking the board for the $200 allowed them out of the County Advertising fund, was read and placed on file.

The usual requisitions were received and allowed.

Supervisor Bailey reported several bridges in his district out of repair, and the matter of improving them was referred to him with power to act.

The Willing Workers of the Presbyterian Church will give a fair next month.

The Alameda Macadamizing Company is using a steam roller on Central avenue.

A. Schoeder has commenced to lay an artificial sidewalk in front of his premises, corner of Park street and Webb avenue.

Yesterday did not pass off at the West End without a row, but no arrests were made. A couple of young men from Oakland got into a dispute, which resulted in blows, but they were separated before the police came around.

The City Trustees hold a meeting this evening, and it may be a very lively one. Some of the property owners are not satisfied at the way the work has been done in some of the streets, and it is said that they will make a big kick this evening.

Scarlet fever, in a light form is an epidemic in this city, and it may be necessary to close the public schools. The Board of Health has decided to quarantine all the families in which the disease prevails, and has ordered placards of warning to be posted on the houses.

A NEW CHURCH.

Dedication of the Welsh Presbyterian Edifice.

The new Welch Presbyterian Church at the corner of Fourteenth and Harrison streets was formally dedicated yesterday.

The services were opened by Rev. J. R. Williams, recently from Wales. He said that he was glad and proud to be present at the dedication of the first Welch Church in the State of California.

The dedicatory sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. Horton. He congratulated the congregation on now having a house of their own. He then spoke at some length upon the subject of the spiritual needs of man, and the divine power to fill those needs.

The regular morning service was conducted in Welsh by Rev. Moses Williams of this city.

Public Works.

J. C. Mathews & Son, architects have certified that Robert Smillie, contractor for rebuilding the High school, is entitled to $2891 75, second payment on the work. The Board of Public Works will meet in special session this evening to approve the claim to consider certain street work referred by the Council, and to submit plans to the Board of Education for four additional rooms to be builded at the Franklin school.

Will be Placed on the Market.

Between Fourth and Fifth avenues and Nineteenth and Twentieth streets, East Oakland, the grade of Fifth avenue has been lowered some five and one-half feet and the block of land has been graded which now makes it very desirable for building lots. The block will shortly be placed on the market by the owner W. P. Cresswell.

Beulah Park Camp Meeting.

The National Camp Meeting Association will hold a camp meeting at Beulah Park, East Oakland, commencing September 26th. A very large attendance is expected and will be prepared for.

Necrology.

The Austrian bent-wood furniture is manufactured of ordinary red beach, which is very plentiful in Hungary. The timber is sawed into strips from an inch and a half to two inches square, and these are turned into round rods. They are placed in an air-tight case and exposed for fifteen minutes to the action of superheated steam, which makes them so pliable that they can be bent by hand to the iron patterns, where they are secured and left to dry for several days, after which they are ready to be used in the manufacture of furniture.

A perfect complexion, free from pimple or blemish, is very rarely seen, because few people have perfectly pure blood. And yet, all disfiguring eruptions are easily removed by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Try it, and surprise your friends with the result.

SPORTS ON SUNDAY.

The Oaklands Close on the Heels of the San Franciscos.

The Oaklands are slowly but surely climbing up the league ladder. Saturday, with Coughlan in the box, the Pets won from the Sacramentos after an exciting game. Yesterday the boys faced their old time rivals, the San Franciscos, and won the game with hands down. The new battery, Werhle and Stallings, made their first appearance and were a decided success. This is the way the runs were made by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Oaklands	3	2	0	2	0	1	0	0	0	—8
San Francisco	0	0	0	0	2	0	1	0	1	—4

The Senators Win.

The Stocktons were defeated by the Senators yesterday at the latter's grounds, by a score of 14 to 6. Hundt and Ziegler were the twirlers, and both were hit hard. The score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Sacramentos	2	0	3	1	6	1	0	1	0	—14
Stocktons	2	0	0	1	0	2	1	0	0	—6

The Canoe Club.

The members of the Oakland Canoe Club enjoyed a two days' cruise about the bay. The canoeists were the guests of the Corinthian Yacht Club of San Francisco.

At the Butts.

At the regular monthly target shoot of Company A, Fifth Regiment, at Shell Mound Park yesterday, the following scores were made, all of which are away below the average of the shooting of that company. The strong wind and poor light had much to do with the bad records. L. C. Warner, 0; W. H. Kirkham, 41; George E. Shirey, 38; F. W. Sandford, 35; D. A. Stuves, 33; George Boxley, 12; W. J. Downie, 49; H. M. Seymour, 16; W. H. Monroe, 30; H. B. Gaston, 15; J. S. Fyfe, 25; L. E. Barkman, 23; J. B. Logan, 55; Charles Poulter, 37; J. H. Mehring, 10; J. H. Barrett, 26; George W. Hosmer, 28. The Mount Eden Gun Club have nothing to fear from Company A.

THE TROPHY WON.

S. E. Knowles is the Successful Man.

At the sixth and last monthly prize shoot of the Alameda County Sportsman's Club on Saturday at Adams Point, the trophy of the club, a handsome silver pitcher, was won by S. E. Knowles. This pitcher was won by a team of ten men of the Alameda County Sportsman's Club from a team of the San Francisco Gun Club on July 21st last by a score of 101 to 99.

The club put the pitcher up for competition among its members, to be taken by the one scoring 66 out of a possible 72 during the season. Mr. Knowles' score was 67, and he now becomes the permanent owner of the trophy.

C. T. Boardman's score was sixty-six, in itself a very fine record, but just missing first place. He will have one of the four other handsome prizes offered by the club. Saturday's scores were as follows:

S. E. Knowles	2	2	1	1	1	1	1	0	1	—10
C. F. Boardman	1	1	1	2	1	2	1	1	1	—12
H. Schroeder	2	2	2	0	1	0	1	1	0	—9
S. I. Kellogg	1	1	1	1	2	2	0	1	2	—11
C. M. Osborn	0	1	1	1	2	0	0	2	0	—7
W. E. Mayhew	2	1	0	2	1	0	2	0	1	—9
F. S. Norton	1	1	1	1	2	2	2	1	0	—10

Messrs. Schroeder and Osborn then shot up last month's score, which they were unable to do at the time the shoot took place. Shroeder grassed every bird. The score;

H. Schroeder	1	2	1	2	2	2	1	2	2	—12
C. M. Osborn	0	1	2	2	0	1	1	1	2	—10

The totals for the season were: Knowles, 67; Boardman, 69; Schroeder, 52; Kellogg, 60; Osborn, 57; Mayhew, 62.

A pool shoot at six birds, with eight entries at $2 50 each, concluded the day. Five of the shooters tied with clean scores, and the pool was divided among them. The scores were as follows:

Slade	0	0 (Withdrawn)
Boardman	2	2 2 1 2 —6
Schroeder	1	1 1 1 1 —6
Coffin	1	1 1 1 1 —6
Osborn	2	1 1 1 1 —5
Moore	2	0 1 2 1 —5
Pixley	1	1 2 1 1 —6
Lake	1	1 1 0 1 —5

HUNTING THE PYTHON.

At Large in The Hold of the Steamship Denmark.

Evening Sun.

A dog-faced monkey with Galway whiskers was crying piteously over the loss of her baby in a latticed box aft of amidships on board the National line steamship Denmark this forenoon when the big gang of longshoremen commenced the work of unloading a miscellaneous cargo—including jackasses, dogs, snakes and merchandise generally. Most of these had to be removed before the longshoremen could begin to hunt for the fourteen-foot python, whose escape from its box on the Denmark on the 7th inst. was described in yesterday's Evening Sun.

To a reporter, who found him at breakfast this morning, Captain Bigby said: "Nobody has yet found the slightest trace of the missing snake since its disappearance, and if it is still on board I think it is quite likely it is coiled up under the bedpan of one of the engines. There is a possibility of its having crawled overboard, but if it had done so I think it very probable some one of the crew would have seen it. At first the news of a live snake at liberty on the ship came very near exciting a panic among the men, but now they are becoming used to it and don't mind it much."

Shortly after 10 o'clock Importer Thompson came aboard the steamship, and with Engineer Gibbs and the Evening Sun reporter made a tour of the hold. Nothing was discovered to indicate the presence of the python, and Mr. Thompson, who has had thirty-five years' experience in handling snakes, said that he thought it would not be found until it got very hungry and commenced to forage around for grub. This species of snake, Python Sebae, so Mr. Thompson said, was not poisonous.

"They like to bite, but, pshaw! it doesn't amount to anything," said the importer. "Why, I'd rather have a python bite me than a chinch bug."

"The only fear of the python you need have," so the snake dealer assured Captain Rigby, "is in constriction. If he gets around one of your men he will give them a pretty tight squeeze."

The companion to the snake, which is either dead or securely hidden, was taken out of his box by the importer after the tour of the hold. He is a "beautiful specimen." To use the words of Mr. Thompson, and the rapidity with which he ran out his little forked tongue showed that he was pretty lively after his nineteen days' voyage. Mr. Thompson handled the wriggling snake like the expert he is, but it required all his strength to uncoil all the folds which encircled his left arm.

The search for the missing snake will be continued today. It is proposed to capture the snake by throwing a blanket over it, then grabbing it tightly around the neck, when it is at the mercy of the handler.

ABOUT ANNEXATION.

Citizens Interested Hold a Conference.

At the Board of Trade rooms on Saturday a number of gentlemen met to confer on the proposed annexation of the adjacent territory on the north. There were present members of the Board of Trade and an equal number of gentlemen from the outside territory.

Rev. Mr. Thompson of Temescal was first called upon to give his views, and spoke very earnestly in favor of annexation. He spoke of the poor condition of that village, its want of sewers and fire and police protection.

Messrs. J. B. and A. F. Poirier thought that the proposed area was too great. Beyond Temescal creek the area was farming country. They were, however, in favor of consolidation and one city and county government.

H. D. Irwin of Lorin said the people of his district would rather come into Oakland than form a separate corporation. But there are difficulties in the way. The first object in coming in is to get power to build sewers. He believed there was no law by which a district in a city could bond itself for a main sewer, as it was done by special act when the Main Lake sewer was laid. This was now forbidden. Members of the Board of Trade held an opposite view, and thought that the new charter gave the Council free power to provide sewers for any district. This matter was fully discussed, and in all probability arrangements will be made for a canvass of the territory to determine the sentiment of the voters.

The adjourned meeting of the Board of Trade on Tuesday evening next will doubtless be well attended and prove of wide interest.

AMUSEMENTS.

Harrigan, the noted Irish comedian, will play at the Oakland Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. The play tomorrow evening will be Old Lavender and Wednesday evening will be Cordelia's Aspirations. Harrigan has just finished an unprecedented engagement in San Francisco. He played eight successive weeks in his own plays at the Alcazar to crowded houses.

The Blazer in the West.

Omaha World-Herald.

The blazer has of late made its appearance upon business streets during legitimate hours of trade; it is met with at dinner in hotels, and is seen frequently in offices. Ladies with low nervous organizations come upon it suddenly in street cars, and little children are daily frightened into convulsions by seeing one upon the street. Horses take fright and run away at the sight of it, and it was only the other day that a blazer jarred a cable car off the track on Harney street. It is claimed in some parts that the blazers are so loud that the people cannot go to sleep.

The blazer is simply queering American civilization.

Domestic Strategy.

Terre Haute Express.

Mr. Figg—Yes, I put the hair on there myself so you'd notice the ripped place.

Deafness Can't be Cured.

by local application, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness, (caused by catarrh,) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Replies to Father Gleeson's Sermon

MADE BY DR. DILLE AND MR. WENDTE

"Rome's Assault on Our Public Schools" - The Second of Mr Wendte's Sermons—Personals.

The Rev. Dr. Dille spoke last night on "Rome's Assault on Our Public Schools," as follows: All the Americans accept the history and philosophy of American institutions, and are loyal to those institutions; and it is certain that among them our system of free popular education holds the foremost place. The American doctrine is that the State, which is the highest of all human organizations, is not only entitled to educate, but where manhood suffrage prevails is solemnly bound to educate all its youth for the responsibilities and duties of citizenship. Says Professor Fisher of Yale College; "The State has a right and a duty which it may not abdicate, to guard its own existence, and to provide for what is essential to its well being. There can be no parental claim which nullifies that right, for the child has duties to perform as a member of the civil community, as well as obligations within the family circle.

Father Gleeson tells us that the common school is of atheistic origin. The Pilgrim Fathers were the founders of American free schools, and it is news, indeed, that they were atheists.

Lord Macaulay once said in Parliament: "Therefore forever in history are the founders of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts; though their love of freedom of conscience was illimitable and indestructible, they could see nothing servile or degrading in the principle that the State should take upon itself the education of the people. In the year 1642 they passed the first enactment on the subject in the preamble of which they distinctly pledged themselves to the principle." The history of our public schools is one with the history of our country, and it is the height of insolent assumption for the sworn minions of a foreign despot to attack a system about which our fathers and our statesmen have uttered words like these:

The great and good George Washington said, "Against the insidious wiles of foreign influence I conjure you to believe me, fellow citizens, the jealousy of a free people ought to be constantly awake, since history and experience prove that foreign influence is one of the most baneful foes of a Republican government."

Jefferson, with his almost superhuman sagacity and foresight, declared nearly a hundred years ago that: free schools were an essential part—one of the corner-stones, as he expressed it—of the Republican edifice, and that without instruction free to all, the sacred flame of liberty could not be kept burning in the hearts of Americans.

Madison over sixty years ago said, "A popular government without popular information or means of acquiring it, is but a prologue to a farce or tragedy or perhaps both."

Already in too many instances many of our elections have become a farce, which Madison predicted, and the tremendous tragedy of the War of the Rebellion could never have occurred if in all sections of our country there had been universal suffrage based upon universal education.

James A. Garfield said in his letter of acceptance in July, 1880, "Whatever helps the Nation can justly afford should be generously given to aid the States in supporting common schools, but it would be unjust to our people and dangerous to our institutions to apply any portion of the revenues of the Nation or of the States to the support of sectarian schools."

Encourage free schools and resolve that not one dollar in money appropriated to their support, no matter how raised, shall be appropriated to the support of any sectarian school. Resolved that either the State or Nation, or both combined, shall support institutions of learning sufficient to afford to every child growing up in the land the opportunity of a good common school education.

Our common schools, then, are the bulwarks of our civil and religious liberty and of the purity and integrity of our republican institutions; they alone can guard the nation from that illiteracy which now to millions of Americans makes the Bible and the Constitution of the country a sealed book. And when dismayed at the ignorance and superstition brought to us from foreign lands and dumped by the shipload upon our shores, we thank God and take courage for that wonderful assimilator, the public school, into which the children of all nations enter and come out Americans.

In a government like ours, where political power resides in and springs from the people we must educate; intelligence in the ruler is the first essential of good government. With us the rulers, the sovereigns are the voters and we must educate our masters, or submit to those worst of despotisms, the tyranny of ignorant and vicious majorities. In a government like ours, to leave the people uneducated, or to allow them to be educated in foreign schools and with foreign ideas, is to invite certain destruction to all we hold dear as patriots and as Americans.

The danger to this nation is now not less threatening than it was when many of us shouldered our muskets and followed the flag through four years of war. Then our national unity was threatened; now it is our institutions, and they are as well worth fighting for as was the Union itself. Blood may yet be shed to preserve them, and if it is it will be in a cause not less holy than that for which our comrades died from '61 to '65.

Dr. Schaff once said in one of his great speeches: "This country had its first conflict for its independent existence, its second was for its unbroken unity; the third will be for its institutions." Thanks be to God and the fathers of our Republic.

It achieved its independent existence, it preserved its unity, and it will through Heaven's help, maintain its institutions.

For the most cherished of our institutions, our free schools, are being assailed to-day in every State in his Union by insidious methods and unfamous political deals, in which American principles and rights are being bartered by corrupt politicians for foreign votes. There is to-day an organized and persistent attempt, under foreign leadership and under the mask of devotion to liberty of conscience and freedom of worship, to subject the infant wards of the State to proselytizing influences and discipline, and to prevent by spiritual threats and undue influence the attendance of the child en of to-day, who are the voters of to-morrow, upon our public schools, and to pervert to sectarian purposes the sacred school funds.

There is an irreconcilable and irrepressible conflict between the Roman Catholic theories of education, and it is for the American people to say which of them shall go to the wall, for it is war to the death between them.

The Romanist theory of education is:

I. All education, both secular and religious, is the exclusive function of the Papal Church, to be administered in schools under the sole direction and supervision of the church.

II. In a non-Catholic country like ours, where the church cannot control the whole field of education, Roman Catholics must establish parochial schools for Roman Catholic children, and they have a right to a share of the public school funds, to be applied to the support of parochial schools, over which the State shall have no control.

III Failing in this, that Catholics who support parochial schools ought not to be taxed for public schools.

IV. That when Catholics are so taxed, no textbooks of instruction injurious to Catholic interests should be allowed.

On the other hand the American theory of education is:

I. That secular education is the function of the State—the duty of self preservation and self development requiring the State to make such education uniform and compulsory. Religious education belongs to the family and the church, and the State permits all denominations who desire to do so, to establish church schools, colleges, and seminaries at their own expense, but it is not consistent with true loyalty to the republic nor with the public safety, for any denomination to maintain schools in which supreme allegiance to a foreign ruler is daily taught, and where the coming voter is trained, as Mr. Gladstone says all Catholics are, to hold his loyalty and civil duty at the mercy of another. Therefore every parochial school ought to be closed by law.

II. That while the common schools may teach the common principles of Christian morals, as does the common law, they are not to give distinctively denominational or sectarian religious instruction. The second amendment to the Constitution provides that Congress shall make no law respecting the establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof. When my friend, Mr. Wendte, intimates that the orthodox Protestant churches of this country desire sectarian instruction, or even with any unanimity the retention of the Bible in the public schools, he is mistaken.

III. That the school funds are not to be divided, and that those who contribute to private or parochial schools are not to be exempt from taxation for the public schools.

IV. That State supervision should be so far extended to all private schools as to prevent the mischievous or misleading instruction of those who are to be the future citizens of the State.

The war between these two diametrically opposite theories of education has been going on for forty years. In 1840 Bishop Hughes demanded a division of the school funds of the State of New York, on the ground that the consciences of Catholics were outraged by the reading of the Protestant scriptures in the schools. Rufus Choate said at that time: "Expel the Bible from the school? Never, while enough of Plymouth Rock remains to make a gun flint!"

Nevertheless they were expelled from the schools of New York and Cincinnati, and from most of the schools of the country, and six States, our own among, put a provision in their constitution forever banishing the Bible from the schools. Were the Romanists satisfied? No, they at once raised the cry, "The schools are godless!" It was not because they were afraid of the Bible or the Lord's Prayer that they attacked the schools, but because the objected to Catholic children and Protestant children sitting side by side, and studying the same books, and breathing the same atmosphere of freedom and imbibing the same modern ideas. They know very well that when their children feel the electric touch of liberty they will not believe in Holy water and the mummery of the mass any more. It is not that they want the Douay version of the Bible; they do not have that in their parochial schools; the catechism suits their purpose better. They have no use for the Bible in any form. What they want is to bring the public schools under suspicion as irreligious and ungodly, and then to build up Romish schools on their ruins. The Catholic Tablet said after the Bible was banished in Cincinnati: "The expulsion of the Bible does not meet nor in any degree lessen our objection to the public school system." The Freeman's Journal says; "Let the public school system go to where it came from—the devil."

In this contest Rome has scored several victories, and this makes her the bolder in her claims today. In New Haven and New Britain, Conn., in Manchester, N. H., and in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., the school funds were actually turned over to the priests and Sisters of Mercy, and the parochial schools were supported by the public funds.

In the city of New York during the last seventeen years $22,832,086 has been paid out of the public treasury to Roman Catholic institutions, and among these were fifty-six parochial schools. The Tweed ring gave these schools in one year $800,000, and Connolly, Sweeney, Tweed and A. Oakey Hall gave the church that magnificent block on Fifth avenue, worth millions of dollars, on which the great Cathedral is now being built ad majorem dei gloriam. Today 2½ per cent. of the entire tax levy of the city of New York and 6 per cent. of the entire expense of the city government is paid to the Roman Catholic Church and the Catholics pay but 10 per cent. of the taxes of the city. They receive from the public funds ten times as much as all the other denominations together. And the same state of things exists in all our municipal Rome-and-Boss-ridden cities.

Flushed with these victories that naked sword of Jesuitism whose hilt, says the Encyclopedia Britannica, is in Rome and its point everywhere is bared to strike down our school system and the scabbard has been thrown away. It is war to the knife and the knife to the hilt. As long ago as 1853 Archbishop Hughes, in a lecture in New York, said "the public school is a disgrace to the civilization of the eighteenth century." Pope Pius IX in his encyclical of 1864 condemned those institutions which Americans hold dearer than life itself—free speech, free press, a free church, free schools and a free government—as the liberty of perdition, impious, absurd and erroneous doctrines, detestable sentiments pregnant with the most deplorable evils.

In 1872 the Catholic children were taken out of the public schools in Holyoke, Mass., and about the same time the Bishop of Cleveland commanded his clergy to refuse the sacraments to all who patronized the public schools.

The last Plenary Council held at Boston in 1884 commanded all Catholics to organize and support only parochial schools. That decree is being executed. Parochial schools are rising from sea to sea—and today half a million Catholic children are in them.

A Catholic University with an endowment of $8,000,000 has been established at Washington. Monsignor Capel, the apostle to the "genteels," an eminent emissary of Romanism, incites a Catholic outbreak by this treasonable language:

"The time is not far away when the Roman Catholics of the republic of the United States, at the order of the Pope, will refuse to pay the school tax, and will send its fleets through the breasts of Government ships rather than pay it."

Father Walker of St. Lawrence's Roman Catholic church, New York, said: "The public schools are nurseries of vice; they are godless schools, and they who send their children to them cannot expect the mercy of God. I would as soon administer the sacrament to a dog as to such Catholics."

Priest McCarthy said in a sermon reported in the Boston Journal December 23, 1887, "The public school is a national fraud. It must cease to exist, and the day will come when it will cease to exist."

According to Sadlier's Roman Catholic Almanac for 1888, there were 2006 parochial schools in this country, and 511,063 pupils in them. In the Catholic schools and institutions of San Francisco there are 10,000 children and youth. I do not know the statistics of Oakland in this regard, but we have just seen St. Mary's College, costing $200,000, inaugurated with a great flourish of trumpets and by a malignant attack upon the public schools.

On the 8th of May, 1888, Rev. Father Metcalf, rector of a Catholic Church in South Boston, complained to the Boston School Board that Mr. Travis, a teacher in the English High School, in the course of a lesson in history, had made offensive statements in regard to the Roman Catholic doctrine and practice of indulgences. The subservient school board dismissed Mr. Travis from his position in the school, and ordered Swinton's history discontinued as a text book. Think of it. In Boston in the nineteenth century, under shadow of Bunker Hill monument, a public school teacher is compelled to take a true text book of history under his arm and march out with it because he dared to teach the truth of history about indulgences, and another teacher in the same school goes over to Rome because he says he has a family to support, and he is afraid of losing his place. I tell you Swinton's history told the truth about indulgences. I am glad Rome has the grace to be ashamed of its history on that question, but it will find it a big job to blot out the record, for that record is written in blood. Father Gleeson objects to this passage in one of our text books: "In 1517 there came into Saxony one Tetzel, a Dominican friar, selling indulgences. The wickedness and impudence of this man, who was better fitted to receive than to dispense pardon of sin, aroused general indignation." "Now," says Father Gleeson with an air of virtuous indignation, "if this means anything it means that indulgences were a pardon of sin, and that they were sold by the Catholic Church." Were and are reverend fathers, and that no one knows better than yourself, only that it suits your purpose to attempt to mystify the whole question with Jesuitical subterfuges. How in the face of history these men can have the audacity to say that Rome never sold indulgences passes comprehension.

Swinton's History was proscribed, because on page 320 it says in a foot note: "These indulgences were, in the early ages of the church, remissions of the sentences imposed upon persons whose sins had brought scandal upon the community. But in process of time they were represented as actual pardons of guilt, and the purchaser of indulgence was said to be delivered from all his sins."

The question is, is this statement of Swinton true or false? Was an "indulgence" at the time and place of which Mr. Swinton speaks (Germany, 15th century,) understood to mean a remission of sins? Why, unless it was the ninety-five theses of Luther, which were in the main directed against indulgences, had no meaning and the reformation itself has no explanation. Some things are settled in this 19th century, and the great principles of the reformation are no longer an open question with the American people. Ranke, who is an authority among Catholics, says: "The reformation may be said to have originated in the violent shock which Luther's religious feeling received from the sale of indulgences," which he subsequently describes as "the doctrine of a forgiveness of sins for money."

But were indulgences sold? The statement that they were shocks Father Gleeson very much. Let me quote Cardinal Gibbons on that point. In "the faith of our fathers" he says (page 390): "I will not deny that indulgences have been abused." He then quotes the Council of Trent as follows: "Wishing to correct and amend the abuses which have crept into them, and on occasion of which this signal name of indulgences is blasphemed by heretics, the holy synod enjoins, in general, by the present decree, that all wicked traffic for obtaining them, which has been the fruitful source of many abuses among Christian people, should be wholly abolished." We thus cannot ask any stronger corroboration of Swinton than this from Cardinal Gibbons himself. He practically acknowledges, and so does the Council of Trent, a "wicked traffic" in indulgences by the hands of John Tetzel in Germany, which gave rise to the Protestant Reformation under Martin Luther.

A Catholic who had not the manliness to come out into the open, but skulked under that coward's signature, an assumed name, either because he was ashamed of his cause or his argument, said in a recent newspaper article, that an indulgence does not authorize a man to commit sin, but only delivers him from the penalty of it when it has been committed. Where is the difference? What thief wants permission to steal if, by dividing the swag, he can escape the penalties? I give the definition of the Council of Trent, the definition of the Catholic Church: "An indulgence is the remission, in whole or in part, of the temporal penalty which is due for sins, conferred by an authorized agent of the church, and having its ground in the treasury of merits which is in the keeping of the church." Now when Catholics tell us Protestants that the temporal that is the terminable penalty of sin is alone remitted by indulgences they strive to carry the impression that the temporal penalty of sin simply consists in the ecclesiastical censures and penances which the church imposes for the sake of disciplining its subjects, and which it certainly has a right to remit. But the truth is, and I defy any reputable Catholic to deny it, the temporal penalty cancelled by an indulgence may not only be an ecclesiastical penalty, but may be one demanded by divine justice, and by the will of God. Bouter and Milner, Roman Catholic theologians, tell us that the temporal punishment remitted by indulgences, includes not only evil in this life, but temporal suffering in the next, which is called purgatory.

Let me quote their exact words:

Charles Butler says: "The Roman Catholic Church teaches that God frequently remits the essential guilt of sin and the eternal punishment incurred by it, but leaves a temporal punishment to be incurred by the sinner; that this temporal punishment may consist either of evil in this life, or of temporal suffering in the next—which temporal suffering in the next we call purgatory; that the temporal punishment may consist of both these inflictions, and that the church has received power from God to remit them either wholly or partially."

John Milner says: "It is the received doctrine of the church that an indulgence, when truly gained, is not barely a relaxation of the canonical penance enjoined by the church, but also an actual remission by God himself, of the whole or part of the temporal punishment due to it in his sight. The contrary opinion, though held by some theologians, has been condemned by Leo X and Pius VI.

This is taught by Thomas Aquinas (Sum. Theol. III Sup. 25:1), by Leo X in his bull against Luther's teachings, and by the Council of Trent (Session VI. Decree on Justification.)

Mosheim tells us that Pope Leo X, in order to carry on the expensive structure of St. Peter's at Rome, published indulgences with a plenary remission to all who should contribute to that object. The rite of promulgating these indulgences in Germany, together with a commission on the sale of them, was granted to Albert of Metz, Archbishop of Magdeburg, who selected for his chief agent this man John Tetzel, for whose memory (heaven save the mark!) Father Gleeson enters the lists with lance at rest. Tetzel boasted that he had saved more souls by his indulgences than St. Peter had by his preachings, assured his customers that their crimes, however enormous, would be forgiven, and that if one should even violate the mother of God the indulgences would free him from both guilt and punishment. This was the form of absolution given by Father Gleeson's patron saint, at whose shrine many a Protestant school teacher and school book has been martyred.

"I, Tetzel, by the authority of the Lord Jesus Christ, and of his apostles Peter and Paul, and of the most holy Pope, do absolve thee, first, from all ecclesiastical censures, in whatever manner they have been incurred; and from all thy sins, transgressions, and excesses, however enormous they may be. I remit to thee all punishment which thou deservedst in purgatory on their account, and I restore thee to the holy sacraments of the church, and to that innocence and purity which thou possessedst at baptism—so that when thou diest the gates of punishment shall be shut and the gates of paradise opened, and if thou shalt not die at the present this grace shall remain in full force when thou art at the point of death." He declared, this friend of Father Gleeson's, that the moment the money tinkled in the chest, the soul for whose release it was paid instantly escaped from the place of torment and ascended to heaven.

Father Gleeson is estopped from disavowing Tetzel, for the church is semper idem (always the same), and Leo X, who commissioned Tetzel, was an infallible Pope. His bull "De Indulgentis," thus defines indulgencies: "The Roman Pontiff, vicar of Christ on earth, can for reasonable causes, by the power of the keys, grant to the faithful, whether in life or in purgatory, indulgences out of the superabundant merits of Christ and the saints." What blasphemy, to make the atonement of Christ a matter of barter and sale! Clement V granted to all pilgrims who should die on the road to Rome during his jubilee year, a plenary absolution of all sins, and commanded the angels to carry them straight to heaven.

Thus the Lateran Council of 1625, the first œcumenical council held in the West, promised to those who should go to Jerusalem, and aid efficiently in its recovery from the infidel, remission of their sins as well as protection of their property. This it promised without specifying any religious condition whatever. Scarcely more guarded was the promise made by Pope Julius II in 1506, that those who should join the campaign of the King of France should have full remission of all their sins and enjoy eternal felicity in the society of angels.

Indulgences not sold? Why, the practice is today in Catholic countries as scandalous as the Catholic historian Lingard declares it was in the time of Luther. In the leading churches in Rome you will see over the door in large letters Indulgentia plenaria et perpetua pro vivis et defunctis. As you are not as familiar with Latin as Father Gleeson's congregation, I will translate that for you, "Full and perpetual indulgences for the living and the dead." In the Church of St. Maria del Pace, it reads: "Every mass celebrated at this altar frees a soul from purgatory." In the Church of the Three Fountains there is this inscription over a box: "to pay for masses to deliver souls from purgatory," and in the Church of St Croce: "Every mass celebrated at this altar frees a soul from purgatory, by order of Pope Gregory XIII." And I affirm that an indulgence is a permission to commit sin. Not long ago, you all know the Duke of Aosta fell in love with his niece and married her. He well knew that such a marriage was incestuous and unlawful in both church and State. For a similar offense Popes Celestine III and Innocent III broke up the royal family of Spain, and ordered under penalty of excommunication the wife to be torn from husband and children because of a marriage within forbidden degrees. But the Duke of Aosta sent the present Pope $50,000 and obtained a dispensation—that is, in plain language, a permission to commit incest. Pope Leo XIII also granted to Prince Amadeu permission to marry his niece, Letitia Bonaparte. That was the right to commit incest. Was that a right to commit sin or not? I hope Father Gleeson will give us a categorical answer to that question. Well, Mr. Travis and Swinton's history went out of the Boston schools for telling the ugly truth about Rome, and a blessed thing it was, for it woke up the old Puritan spirit, and the Puritans, thank God, have captured Boston! Whom the gods destroy they first make mad, and it will be a sorry day for the Pope's legions when our patient and long suffering people once wake up to the conspiracy being engineered from Rome against our public schools. In Boston you know the women vote on the election of school boards, and last September 25,000 women registered in Boston, though only 2000 had been registered before. Nothing could stay the tide of public indignation! In vain the priests mustered their forces and instructed them in the confessional to vote to put down the Yankees. But the Yankees carried the day. Well, the priests have succeeded better in San Francisco than they did in Boston. Two years ago Professor Henry Sanger, then principal of the Girls' High school, was dismissed from the place, or rather forced, as John Swett was recently, to send in his resignation. I will give you Mr. Sanger's own words. In his letter he says: "When, on the complaint of the Rev. Father Gallagher, I was suspended last August (that is, two years ago), without proper trial, and in flagrant violation of the rules and regulations of the Board of Education, I intended, though I had been promptly reinstated, to resign at once my position as teacher of the San Francisco Girls' High School.

"The earnest solicitations of leading citizens, the almost unanimous sympathy of my scholars, irrespective of creed or nationality, the hope that the future might bring a change, prevented me at that time from following my own inclination and serving my individual interest. But now, as in my opinion as a teacher, the new course prescribed for the Girls' High school is one beneath the grade of a high school, and as it guts out the history of the Protestant Reformation, a matter at once as an American citizen to me as a teacher, I now tion as assistant teacher San Francisco Girls' High schoo any time most convenie able board, not later August of this year."

Why is it that Rome with history? It reminds church whose minister against chicken stealing at once waited on him Jones, we hab come to resignation, sah! We do that is always raking up sah!"

Seriously, how long people going to stand a lot of foreign priests bou allegiance to a fore their dearest concerns their children? Last Lambert, assistant princ school, had to resign be with the American pa nowadays to be an A are a hyphenated one—o hybrids which like anc neither pride of ancestry posterity, an Irish-Ameri American or British-Am not to admit anybody to less they will agree to behind them! Father Gleeson goes o increase of crime, immo this land is to be laid at public school—that in example, where the Ror recently routed, horse, fo there is actually one arre nine of the population, a youth of the old Bay Sta into parochial schools u care of Mother Church.

I am glad Massachuse and comparison between schools in that State chal some instructive statisti point compiled from the Hon. Dexter A. Hawkins

To every 10,000 inhabita

	Illiterates.	Paupers.	Crimin.
Roman Catholic schools produced	1400	10	50
Public schools of twenty-one States	350	170	75
Public schools of Massachusetts	71	49	11

I venture the statement that 75 per cent. of the twenty-nine arrest refers to women. Drink, pa and that a clear majority of them enjoyed the advantage of attendance upon parish schools in this or the old country. If the crime of the Bay State has increased it is because her foreign born population has so largely increased, as everybody knows.

But Father Gleeson's diatribes are only the echo of the utterances of abler men in the same communion.

At a meeting held in St Louis the Irish Catholic Benevolent Union passed the following resolutions:

"Resolved, That the present system of public schools, ignoring all supernatural authority and making God the first knowledge, the last thing to be learned, is a curse to our country, and a flood gate of atheism, of sensuality, and of civil and social corruption." On that occasion Priest Phelan said "The public men of America were educated in the public schools and were exhibitions of the system, and they were the most corrupt and dishonest of any country in the world. Men can steal in this country with impunity, provided the amount is large enough. That the children of the country go heels over head to the devil, must be attributed to the education they receive in the public schools, which does not fit them for the temptations of the world. In these schools no mention of science are honored and eulogized, but the name of Jesus Christ is not allowed to be mentioned with reverence. These children turn out to be learned horse thieves, scholastic counterfeiters, and well posted in all schemes of villainy."

Isn't it strange that these priests will allow members of their flock to have anything to do with such an institution? If Father Gleeson has such a high opinion of our public schools why don't he take his parishioners off the school board and out of the department and wash his hands of the whole infamous business? We would try and worry along without either him or them.

I tell you fellow citizens, these statements are an infamous libel upon our public school system. They are lies that all the holy water in Oakland can't sanctify.

We are quite willing to compare our public men who have been educated in our free schools with the public men who have been educated in the schools of Rome. Call the roll of the graduates Rome's schools have turned out: Tweed, Sweeney, Connolly, A. Oakey Hall, Piggott the perjurer, O'Donovan Rossa, the Clan-na-gael, John Kelley, John Morrissey, J. L. Sullivan, Zach Montgomery, Boss Higgins, Boss Buckley. Shall I call the roll of the Boodle Aldermen of New York and Chicago? Go visit them in their cells and in Canada and their ores we will tell you where they were educated. Does Father Gleeson tell us that the common school fosters crime? Go into the prisons in this and other states and ask the prisoners "what is your faith? In what faith were you reared?" and it is a conservative estimate that 75 per cent. will say "in the Roman Catholic faith" and that a majority of that 75 per cent. were once in the parish schools. Go into the drinking saloons in the cluster of cities around the bay and ask the runsells their religious faith or training, and 75 per cent will say "Roman Catholic." If I am not pleasant to make these comparisons. Please remember that I was not the first to make them.

But about the public common schools have proved men. Well, our as Charles Sumner and duced such men Henry Wilson and U. S. Grant and John A. Logan and Benjamin Harrison and Horace Greeley and James A. Garfield and W. Bartlett. I think our public men will compare favorably with the output of the parochial schools.

But since comparisons are challenged between the fruits of the two systems of education, American free schools and sectarian parish schools, I shall be happy to devote another sermon to an exhaustive comparison of them, and on next Sunday evening (D. V.) I will continue this discussion, taking for my theme "Public vs. Parochial Schools." I intend to show when, among other mighty interesting things, how in the parochial schools, and in the public schools where the Jesuits deliberately of school boards, the Jesuits deliberately mutilate textbooks and falsify the truths of history.

And now permit me a word in closing.

I have no prejudice against our Roman Catholic fellow-citizens; indeed, with my friend Mr. Wendte, I believe that the rank and file are loyal to our institutions. It is the hierarchy that is plotting against our schools, and over the hierarchy the Catholic laity have no control. If the Roman Catholic Church, through her priesthood, were less interfered with matters of public policy outside of her sphere we as Americans would have no special cause of assault toward her. Toward the communion who are imitating the life and spirit of Christ I have only the most fraternal and kindly feelings. Should occasion require we would defend the religious liberty of our Catholic fellow citizens, as we would our own, to the death. We are not the foes of Roman Catholics; we wish them well; we would not harm a hair of their heads; we believe that we are working for their highest interests, and their children's, as well as our own, when we resist all aggression upon the common schools. But we say to these priests who are at the bottom of all this agitation and trouble: "We are tired of packed school boards, and falsified histories, and intimidated teachers, and scholars whipped by Irish priests for daring to attend a public school, and of hearing the public schools abused and slandered in the foulest language as hotbeds of immorality, as though they were reeking sewers of vice and our sweet faced teachers procuresses of hell. We are tired of it, and while you boast that the institution shall go down, though it be at the point of the bayonet, we say to you that it may go down, but some of us and a good many of you will die first!"

In the meanwhile we will pray for and reason with our friends. If haply they may come to a better mind.

If not, they will find out that there are some things we hold dearer even than domestic peace and tranquillity, viz: the institutions which our fathers left us, and which are as sacred to us as the prayers we learned at our mother's knees, and which we will defend, if need be, to our heart's last drop of blood.

THE SECOND OF THE SERIES.

Mr. Wendte Replies to Father Gleeson on the Schools.

Father Gleeson's discourse at the dedication of St. Mary's College furnished a broad subject for discussion, and the Rev. C. W. Wendte has improved the opportunity by preaching two sermons on the subject, and he will deliver a third next Sunday.

Yesterday Mr. Wendte reviewed his argument of a week ago, and in doing so he argued that all legislation, looking toward an affinity between religion and the public school, is brought about by ambitious ecclesiastics of the Roman Church.

The following quotation from Father Gleeson's discourse was considered at length by Mr. Wendte:

"In fine, then, we Catholics call for a reformation of the public school system of education, because it is dangerous to the well being of the community, because it is the parent of infidelity, an abridgement of our constitutional rights and destructive to parental authority."

Father Gleeson meant every word of the above, too, as was evidenced by his air of sincerity at the time of its delivery.

And here is what Mr. Wendte had to say on the subject:

"Let us consider these few points in turn, and first the charge that the public school is (morally) dangerous to the well being of the community. This objection Father Gleeson further elucidates as follows: 'There are two contradictory opinions entertained by the people of this country on the subject of education. The one advocates and insists on the exclusion of all ethical principles from the region of the schoolroom, while the other equally as strongly calls for and demands their introduction.' So says Father Gleeson, but I do not hesitate to pronounce his statement that any educative or school authorities among us 'advocate and insist on the exclusion of all ethical principles from the schoolroom' are utterly unfounded, and I ask him to produce a single reputable witness from among the friends of the public school to sustain him. All educators, of whatever shade of opinion among us, 'advocate and insist' that ethical principles are and should be an important part of public school education."

"Singularly mistaken and mischievous is the arrangement which Father Gleeson in his sermon and in more recent communications to the newspapers makes against the actual moral influences of the American public schools. He cites in his letter to the Enquirer, August 21st, certain statistics proving the alarming increase of crime in Massachusetts between 1850 and 1884, and attributes this to the public schools. But how is it that while the public schools have existed in Massachusetts ever since 1642, there should have been so little crime, comparatively speaking, until the year 1850, when it began to accelerate at such a frightful rate? I will tell Father Gleeson what a moment's reflection should have suggested to him. It was precisely from 1850 on that the immigration of foreigners, especially Irish Roman Catholics, reached its highest in Massachusetts and New York, and, as observations and statistics abundantly prove, it is from this class of citizens that our almshouses, reformatories, and jails have been principally recruited. Nor does it help this argument any to call them 'native born criminals,' for we well know that this term includes the first generation of children of immigrants, which contains a large proportion of the worst specimens of juvenile depravity and nature willing to be found in the country. I can afford to make and Father Gleeson to take this statement with equanimity, for I am the child of Germans and he, if I mistake not, of Irish immigrants, or, if he is not even of American birth, what special call has he to lecture Americans on their civic duties and obligations to them, the political principles of their republic. But so far as the responsibility for public crime is concerned, I will cite the confession made by the Catholic Church Council at Baltimore in 1866: 'It is a melancholy fact and a very humiliating avowal for us to make that a very large proportion of the idle and vicious youth of our principal cities are the children of Catholic parents,' and then it goes on to advise the establishment of protectorates and reformatories."

Speaking of the morality that is taught in the public schools, Mr. Wendte said: "A person is not moral unless he or she practices morality. So far as parental authority goes, Rome and its pontiff cares nothing for it, save as a pretext on which to base its authority."

Mr. Wendte's tolerant and broad spirit is shown in his concluding words: "Let us be just and kindly toward our Catholic fellow citizen, and always be ready to make any concessions to their honest scruples which will not destroy the efficiency of the schools or engender the sacrifice of American principle itself. Let us be tolerant in spirit, hating bigotry, whether it be displayed by Protestant ministers or Catholic Rivries, remembering that two thirds of the Catholic youth of our country still attend the public schools. Let us continue freely to employ Catholics as teachers and members of the school boards, indeed, the question of man's belief should never be raised in this connection. Competency, character and loyalty to the State are the only qualifications to be required. But let us never yield to the unreasonable and unrighteous demands made by Roman Catholic ecclesiastics who hold the interest of their religion and church above the welfare of the American State; never to recognize their schools officially as part of our American system; never to divide the school fund with them and never to remit their just share of taxes levied upon all for the support of the public schools, must be fundamental principles in this great conflict which ecclesiastical ambition is forcing upon us."

Gratifying to All.

The high position attained and the universal acceptance and approval of the pleasant liquid fruit remedy Syrup of Figs, as the most excellent laxative known, illustrate the value of the qualities on which its success is based and are abundantly gratifying to the Cal. Fig Syrup Company.

A Successful Piano Firm.

F. R. Girard, 1159 Broadway, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, has enlarged his music business to such an extent that he was compelled to occupy the whole of the large store on Broadway, near Fourteenth street. No doubt this is the largest and finest piano room in Oakland. Mr. Girard has the good fortune of being the sole Pacific coast agent for the celebrated Wheelock Pianos, which instruments are now acknowledged by the best musicians to be first class in every respect. Through honorable and fair dealings Mr. Girard has made hosts of friends who all take pleasure in recommending his pianos. The large capital employed enables him to buy for cash, and can sell on easy monthly installments. Any one who will visit this establishment will find that they can buy a piano or organ for less money than the same grade of pianos are sold for in San Francisco. Mr. Girard also will keep a large stock of musical merchandise, which he imports direct. Pianos rented from $3 to $5 per month. All popular music sold for 10 cents a piece. Catalogues sent free. Before you buy a piano or organ you will find it to your advantage to call at F. R. Girard's, 1159 Broadway, near Fourteenth street.

He Saved My Life.

Some 18 months ago my health began to fail until I was confined to my bed. Some of the best medical skill of San Francisco treated me for enlargement of the liver. I failed so rapidly that my relations were summoned to my bedside. When in that condition, and through the influence of Captain Fletcher's family of Oakland, Doctor Bennett of that city was telegraphed for, and the result was most favorable, as the Doctor diagnosed my case as chronic enlargement of the stomach. Without asking any questions he gave me a perfect history of my disease from the beginning down to that date, June 18, 1889. The treatment was begun and I felt a great change inside of six hours. The second day I sat up, and inside of a week I resumed my work as bookkeeper for Gilliman & Danforth's Coffee House.

I am now enjoying splendid health.

THE CHARLESTON.

Her Triumphant Return From Her Trial Trip.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 26. — The cruiser Charleston arrived here from San Pedro on her return from her trial trip, at 8:30 this morning, having made an average speed of thirteen knots all the way from the southern coast. She was given several trials as to her turning and reversing qualities yesterday. The hydraulic steering apparatus was used, and a full circle was completed in a trifle less than seven minutes. Six men were stationed at the hand-steering gear and the helm was thrown hard over in four and a quarter minutes. Twelve men accomplished the same thing in two and a quarter minutes. The full circle was turned in eight and a half minutes. On the reversing test the cruiser was stopped from full speed ahead in thirty-five seconds and was backing astern at good speed in two and one half minutes. When the Charleston entered the harbor this morning she was decorated with brooms and bunting, and the figures 19½, representing her highest rate of speed claimed during the preliminary trial run last Wednesday, were painted on the smoke stack and several other places on the ship. All the steam whistles in the harbor were blowing as the new cruiser moved along to her moorings, and the Charleston responded all the time with her fog siren.

GRAND ARMY MEN

Meet With a Bad Railroad Accident on the Way to Milwaukee.

STREATER, Ill., August 26.—The vestibule train on the Santa Fe, running between Kansas City and Chicago, met with a serious accident at Kinsman, fifteen miles north of here, this morning. The train was heavily loaded with Grand Army veterans and their friends bound for the Milwaukee encampment. By the spreading of the rails two Pullman sleepers and the dining car were thrown from the track down a steep embankment forty feet. Word was telegraphed here, and a special train sent with a dozen surgeons. Those most seriously injured were brought to this city and taken to the hospital, where their wounds were attended to. In all probably fifty persons were hurt, and though none were killed outright many are in a very dangerous condition, and a majority of these it is feared, will die.

THE CHARGE AGAINST FIELD

Dismissed by District Attorney White Today.

STOCKTON, August 26.—District Attorney White received a letter today from Attorney-General Johnson, as already published, and went before Judge Swain with the letter. They agreed that the instructions contained in the letter were binding upon the District Attorney and the charge of murder in connection with the killing of D. S. Terry was dismissed as to Justice Stephen J. Field.

Forty Thousand Strangers Have Arrived at Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 26.—From early morning the inspiring sound of fife and drum were heard on the streets leading from the railroad stations and steamboat docks. The weather is delightful. General Warner and the Kansas City contingent arrived at 10 o'clock. It is estimated that forty thousand strangers are in town, and the crowd is being swelled by every train. The city is more elaborately decorated than at any time in its history.

LEGITIME LEFT.

Hippolyte, Provisional President of Hayti, Has No Opposition.

WASHINGTON, August 26. — Acting Secretary Walker has received the following cablegram from the United States Consul at Santiago de Cuba, dated to-day:

"Admiral Gherardi at Port au Prince orders me to cable that Hippolyte's forces of 7000 men quietly occupied town on the 23d. The Minister of War of northern forces assures me he will permit no rioting demonstration or destruction of property. A corvette sailed at noon for Santiago de Cuba with Legitime, his principal followers, and a number of refugees. The city continues quiet. Hipolyte, the Provisional President, will enter the city to day."

THE LONDON STRIKE.

It Threatens to Become General in All the Trades.

LONDON, August 26.—The strike began by the dock laborers, which subsequently spread to the carmen, has now extended to the Thames iron workers and the gas stokers threaten to join forces with the strikers. There is also some talk of compeling laborers in all the trades quitting work to force matters to an issue at once. The iron workers' strike adds seven thousand to the number of unemployed. The men are as yet orderly. The shipping business is completely paralyzed. Mail steamers are leaving without cargoes, and four of the largest mills in Blackburn have shut down owing to the dullness of trade.

LONDON, August 26.—The tin platers at Bermondsey have joined the strikers in the ship building district of London. Processions of strikers are marching continually.

Three of Them Ask for Separate Trials.

CHICAGO, August 26.—The cases of Coughlin, Burke, Beggs, Kunze, and O'Sullivan, charged with complicity in the murder of Dr. Cronin on the 4th of last May, came up for trial this morning. Affidavits were made by Kunze, Coughlin, and O'Sullivan asserting their innocence, and asking for separate trials.

WANT A WHITE MAN.

Some Objections to the Appointment of Fred Douglas.

WASHINGTON, August 26.—A rumor is printed here that owing to some objection in Hayti to having a black man as Minister, President Harrison has decided to withdraw the appointment of Fred Douglas. This is denied at the State Department, but it is said Douglas will probably not be sent until Hippolyte asks for recognition. Douglas called upon Acting Secretary Wharton today and announced his readiness to leave for his post, but Wharton stated that the department is not ready to send him.

DAVIS'S LUCK.

He Gets Twenty-five Hundred Dollars on an Investment of One Dollar.

Although it is a well known fact that investments in Oakland real property are considered by Oakland real estate agents to be the safest and most remunerative of any, still there is one real estate man who has found a better, safer and more paying field for investment, especially when the investment is small and the probable returns large.

The gentleman referred to made his discovery in an accidental manner, and has had every reason to congratulate himself upon his good fortune.

Some weeks ago he was approached by a person who offered for sale a half ticket in the Mexican Lottery, which after some hesitation, he purchased for the trifling sum of $1.

The real estate agent, who by the way, is one of the most prominent and well-known men in Oakland, and is a member of the large real estate firm, located at 468 Ninth street, in this city, forgot for a time the transaction until his attention was called to the printed notice containing the list of the winning numbers of the Mexican Lottery.

Casually glancing his eye over the columns he was thunderstruck by seeing that 54,438 had drawn $5,000. Hurriedly opening his pocketbook he took out his ticket and saw that there was no mistake.

His astonishment was unbounded. He had won $2500.

It had only cost him $1.

What an enormous return for his dollar.

The fortunate investor hastened to the office of the Mexican Lottery in San Francisco and, presenting his ticket, was further amazed by being paid in full, in United States gold coin, the sum of $2500.

No discount, no Mexican money, but real hard yellow gold of the United States. This was a revelation, as the fortunate speculator had, at least, expected to have to make a liberal discount, but was informed by the San Francisco management that all winning tickets in the Mexican Lottery were cashed for their full face value.

When the fact of his good fortune became known to the friends of the lucky man he was tendered hearty congratulations, and they, as well as himself, are thoroughly satisfied that for a small, safe, sure investment, the Mexican Lottery offers the best inducements of any in existence.

The drawing took place on August 11, 1889, and the above numbered ticket was only one of the many tickets sold on the Pacific coast which won large prizes.

Louisville Post.

A traveler just returned from San Francisco, after a considerable stay in that city, tells me that what impressed him most was the girls and the fleas. Both are large in size and plentiful in numbers.

"The women are the finest looking specimens you ever saw," says the young man. "They are well developed, healthy, and handsome. Of course I was duly impressed. But next to them I think the fleas take up the largest share of attention. They have no mosquitoes in San Francisco, but the fleas—their name is legion. Here in Louisville you frequently see 'Rough on Rats' advertised for sale. But in San Francisco it is 'Rough on Fleas.' You see the sign everywhere. It is a favorite poison for disconsolate servant girls to commit suicide with. I don't wonder that desperate measures were taken to get rid of the San Francisco flea. He is everywhere—in your clothes, in your bed, in the carpet, in the furniture. He is not a pleasant object to talk about, but in San Francisco he is too prominent a feature to be ignored. The flea is one of the principal objections to the glorious climate of California.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

Afternoon Session.

At the afternoon session of the board a petition was read from George D. Burbank and several other residents of Bay Road district showing that the territory has more than 500 inhabitants and therefore constitutes a city or town within the meaning of section 3062 of the Political Code, and accordingly should have a health officer as prescribed by law, which they respectfully petitioned for. The matter was referred to the District Attorney.

E. Johnson, overseer of the Vale Road district, asked that the bridge in Redwood canyon be repaired at once, as it was in a dangerous condition. Referred to Supervisor Martin with power to act.

Supervisor Pelouze introduced the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That the matter of appearing before the State Board of Equalization at Sacramento on Tuesday, September 3d, 1889, and opposing the proposed increase of the Assessment Roll of Alameda County for 1889 be referred to the Committee of the Whole in conjunction with the Assessor, District Attorney, and County Clerk, with instructions to so appear on said date and vigorously protest against any such increase and to present all the facts and figures possible tending to show the injustice of any such increase.

The board then adjourned until Monday, September 2d, at 10 A. M.

An Improved Street.

Twenty-fifth or Laurel street has been graded, curbed and macadamized from Broadway to a point 457 3-12 feet east of Telegraph avenue, at a cost of $1170.28, the price per front foot being $1.40. The remainder of the roadway to Telegraph avenue has been improved, hence Twenty-fifth street is now macadamized all the way from Broadway to Telegraph avenue.

A SUCCESSFUL COMPANY.

A Record Unequaled in the History of Express Companies.

Two years ago there was a little four wagon express company started and called the "People's Express Company." From the first success stared the company in the face, and owing to the prompt and careful attention to business and being in the hands of good managers it is today the most extensive and best conducted company on the coast, and its patrons have placed the stamp of their approval upon the above statement. It runs the largest and most costly wagons that cross the bay, manufactured expressly for it, and unparalleled in structure, some being especially built to carry furniture and pianos while others are for heavy freight, safes, etc. This company's baggage system is beyond the possibility of questioning, the most reliable and prompt medium of transportation. It checks baggage at hotels or residences to all parts of the United States. Office 423 Tenth street. Telephone 320.

Drop in to George's Exchange, 477 Eighth street, for fresh beer on tap, choice wines, liquors and cigars, and weiss beer.

Oakland Carriage Company, Oakland, Cal.—GENTLEMEN: In regard to your note asking our opinion of the general qualities of the carriages of you make we have in our livery stable, we are pleased to state that they have given us better satisfaction than any other work we ever used. For the past year we have had several of your buggies in constant and severe usage, and not only have they stood the test, but we have yet to spend the first dollar on them in repairs of any kind. Truly yours,

KANE & DALY, Almont Stable.

Auction Sale.

Why pay a fancy price at auction when you can take time and inspect goods at your leisure, at H. Schellhaas? A good many auction sales at the present day are conducted on a limit. If goods do not bring a certain price why they are knocked down to Mrs. Brown, or Mr. Hedge, and the next day or two will boom up in a retail shop at a fancy price. At our mammoth furniture and carpets warerooms we have on display full line of elegant and costly chamber and dining room furniture, body Brussels carpets, rugs of all descriptions, engravings, oil paintings, at remarkably low prices. Give us a call at 408 Eleventh street, H. SCHELLHAAS.

AN ORDINANCE

Establishing and Regulating the traffic, vending and disposing of Spiritous, Malt and Fermented Liquors, or Wines or any admixture thereof, in the City of Oakland.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE COUNCIL of the City of Oakland, as follows:

Section 1.—It is hereby declared to be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation to establish, open, keep or carry on within the City of Oakland any saloon, bar, store, dramshop, pipelling place, stand, or any place where spirituous malt or fermented liquors or wines, or any admixture thereof, are sold or disposed of in any quantity not less than one gallon, or for any person, firm or corporation to exceed the current quarter from any person, firm, or corporation engaged or employed in the transaction of such business, and if such person, firm, or corporation shall then and there fail to exhibit such license, such person, firm, or corporation shall be liable to the penalty provided for in section 10 of this ordinance; and it is hereby made the duty of all police and license officers to cause complaints to be filed against all persons, firms, or corporations violating any of the provisions of this ordinance.

Sec. 2.—Every person, firm or corporation receiving a license under this ordinance shall place the same so that it shall at all times be conspicuous and easy to read in his chief place of making sales, and no license shall permit sales by any person, firm or corporation who shall neglect this requirement.

Sec. 3.—No license issued under any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be assignable or transferable without the consent of the Auditor indorsed thereon, and only to such person or corporation as shall have obtained from the City Council the permission hereinafter required, and have filed a bond as hereinafter provided, and complied in all other respects with the preliminary requirements of this ordinance.

Sec. 4.—No person, firm or corporation shall have issued to him or them the license required by this ordinance unless such person, firm or corporation be of good moral character, and first obtain a permission as provided herein, by making application in writing to the City Council as a regular meeting thereof for permission to obtain the license herein required, and shall file with said application a written recommendation signed by not less than five citizens of the City of Oakland occupying real estate within one block, measured from the front entrance of the place where the applicant or applicants propose to carry on the said business, and setting forth:

First—The name and residence of the applicant or applicants, and how long he or they have there resided.

Second—The particular place for which a license is desired.

Third—The name of the owner of the premises.

Fourth—That the applicants are the only person or persons in any manner interested in the business asked to be licensed, and that no other person shall begin any manner interested therein during the continuance of the permission.

Fifth—Whether or not the applicants have had a permission or license for the sale of liquors in this city during any time preceding its or their present application, revoked.

Sixth—That the applicants are of good moral character, and suitable to conduct such a place. This petition must be verified by affidavit of applicants made before the City Clerk or some authorized notary public. Provided, however, that where there are not five citizens, occupying or owning real estate within a distance not exceeding one block, as provided in this section, the Council may, upon the recommendation of three of its members, grant such permission.

Seventh—The term "block" in this ordinance shall be construed as follows:

a. A block shall not exceed 300 feet in its greatest length.

b. Where an establishment to be licensed occupies an entire square or block bounded by four streets, a block shall constitute that frontage of each of the four or blocks next adjacent immediately facing the block occupied by the applicant or applicants for such permission.

c. Where the establishment to be licensed occupies a corner of the block or square on which it is located, then the term "block" shall constitute each of the two frontages of the square or block occupied, and of which the property on which the applicant or applicants for permission is located constitutes a part.

d. Where the establishment to be licensed occupies a part of either a block or square, then the term "block" shall constitute the frontage of which the premises thus occupied constitute a part and the frontage facing the same in the block or square next adjacent and on the opposite side of the street.

Sec. 5.—No permission shall be granted under the provisions of this ordinance to any person, firm or corporation to sell such liquors in any room or place where groceries, drugs or merchandise, other than tobacco and cigars, are sold at wholesale or retail, or in any room or place having any opening into or door connection with premises where groceries, drugs or merchandise, other than tobacco and cigars, are sold at wholesale or retail.

Sec. 6—Such applicant or applicants shall, at the time of making application for permission to obtain a license, file with the City Clerk a bond in the penal sum of one thousand ($1000) dollars, with two or more sureties, who shall each be resident of the City of Oakland, and shall each qualify in double the amount of the penal sum of the bond; said bond to be approved by the City Council and conditioned that said applicant or applicants shall conduct the business for which the license is sought in a quiet, orderly, and reputable manner, and will not permit any breach of peace, or disturbance of the public order or decorum, by any tumultuous, riotous, or disorderly conduct upon the premises, and shall not sell, give, or furnish any intoxicating liquor, spirituous, malt, or fermented liquor or wine, or any admixture thereof, to any person in a state of intoxication, or to any person under the age of 18 years, and that said applicant or applicants shall obey and abide by all laws and ordinances now in force, and which may hereafter be enacted, regulating the time of closing saloons and places of business where spirituous, malt, or fermented liquors or wines, or any admixture thereof, are sold. Said application and recommendation after the approval of said bond shall be immediately referred to the Ordinance and Judiciary Committee for investigation, who shall report the result thereof to the City Council at the next regular meeting following. Cherries pay from	$250 to $400 per acre.	Apples pay from	$150 to $250 per acre.
Rhubarb "	$150 to $300 "	Vegetables "	$ 50 to $100 "
Small Berries "	$100 to $200 "

In confirmation of these figures, we refer to Mr. Socrates Huff, County Treasurer; Mr. C. E. Palmer, Cashier of the Union National Bank; Mr. R. S. Farrelly, and Mr. A. L. Stone. All of these gentlemen own orchards in the immediate vicinity of this tract and can give statistics from their own experience.
